BELIEVE DEATH TOLL IN MINE BLAST IS 29

Sixteen Bodies Recovered Up to Two O'Clock Today.

Mine Officials Believe 13 Others in Shaft Also Perished.

Gates, Pa., Feb. 2—All hope for the miners imprisoned by an explosion in the Gates mine of the H. C. Frick coke company here today was abandoned at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when rescuers came across seven bodies in the workings affected by the blast. Nine bodies had previously been brought to the surface. Checking the workmen believed to have been in the mine, officials said the men still unaccounted for had probably perished.

Company officials arranged to have the bodies removed to Masontown, Pa., where identification would be announced, and the bodies prepared for burial. Identification, it was stated, would be through the metal check which each man wore on his wrist.

Gates, Pa., Feb. 2—Seven men are known to have been killed and 22 others are entombed in a room one and one half miles from the mouth of the Gates mine of the H. C. Frick Coke company, near here, as the result of an explosion early today. Trained rescue crews from all parts of the Connellsville coal field are working in relays, trying to reach the shut in men.

The bodies of the dead men were located in an entry and taken to the foot of the shaft.

Reports which came to the surface from Sam Brown, superintendent in charge of the mine, said that such progress was being made by the rescuers through the fallen earth and rock that he expected to reach the entombed miners by noon. There was nothing the reports said to indicate whether the men were dead or alive.

Hundreds of persons assembled from nearby mines and a detail of ten state policemen were sent to the shaft to hold them back. In the crowd were said to be many members of the families of the dead and missing miners.

The mine is one of the largest in the vicinity and normally employs about 1,000 men. It has been working day and night shifts and a large number of men were in the entries or rooms when the explosion occurred. The mine is a shaft six hundred and eighty feet deep and the explosion occurred in a section so far back in the workings that its force was spent before it could reach bottom of the shaft and damage the hoisting machinery.

As soon as news of the accident reached officials of the company trained rescue crews from all parts of the Connellsville coal field were hurried here, some of them coming in special cars. An offer by the Pittsburgh station of the bureau of mines of a rescue car and its crew was declined for the reason that operating officials of the Frick company felt they could handle the situation.

While it was assumed that the accident was due to a gas explosion operating men at the mine refused to make a positive statement.

HOLD TWO FOR RUM SMUGGLING ON LAKES

Toledo, Feb. 2—Secret service agents late yesterday arrested Harley G. Jockett, 18, son of Charles Jockett, manager of the Toledo power boat club and Bert McCullough, 19, of Detroit, on charges of conspiracy, in connection with an alleged plot to defraud the government through transportation of liquor on the high seas, it became known today.

While the greatest secrecy is maintained by federal officials about the prisoners who are being held in the county jail, it is rumored today that the men are members of a gang of rum runners the government has been after for years and that other arrests, including that of a former city official, would follow.

The fact that John S. Pratt, who is now engaged in the Jesse C. McDowell mail fraud case has been appointed by Attorney General Daugherty to represent the government in the cases, is considered an indication of the importance attached to them.

ARBUCKLE CASE IN JURY'S HANDS

San Francisco, Feb. 2—The case of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle today for the second time was in the hands of a jury. The trial closed unexpectedly yesterday afternoon at four o'clock when the defense declined to present arguments after the state's opening address. Arbuckle is accused of having caused the death of Miss Virginia Rappe.

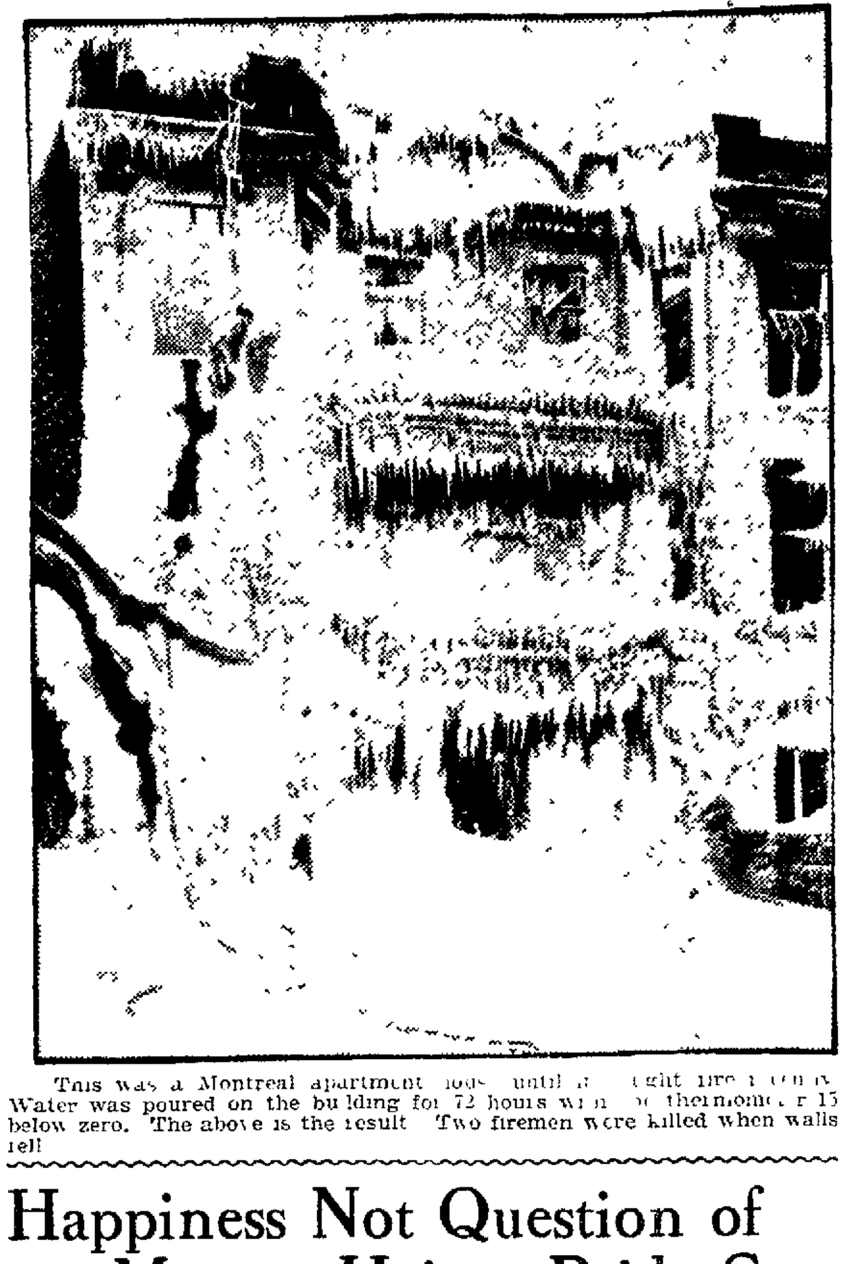
Twice before 11 o'clock last night when the jury was locked up for the night, it returned to the court room to have the stenographic record of certain testimony read and to ask further instructions from the court. The original instructions were reread. The jury was ordered to return to work at 10 o'clock this morning.

It was recalled that the defense in Arbuckle's first trial which ended in a jury disagreement, offered to submit the case without argument if the prosecution would do likewise. That offer was refused.

NEW DISPUTE OVER IRISH BOUNDARY

Dublin, Feb. 2—A serious situation has arisen over the boundary question between Ulster and South Ireland, it was officially stated today as a result of today's conference between Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster and Michael Collins, head of the new Irish provisional government.

Jack Frost Aids Firemen To Make Thls Picture



This was a Montreal apartment house until a night fire [illegible]. Water was poured on the building for 72 hours with the thermometer 15 below zero. The above is the result. Two firemen were killed when walls fell.

Happiness Not Question of Money, Heiress-Bride Says

Chicago, Feb. 2—Mrs. Marion B. Stephens, heiress to $40,000,000, estimate of her father, the late Norman Ream, was speeding to New York today to prepare for her marriage Saturday to Antase Andrevitch Vonsiatskoy, a young Russian employed by the Baldwin Locomotive works.

Arriving in Chicago hurriedly, she transacted pressing business, reiterated her determination to live according to the means of her husband to be in his humble cottage and expressed her views on marriage.

"Happiness," she said, "is not a question of money. Money has nothing to do with my marriage, one way or another. We shall live very simply in accordance with my husband's position, although we are not going to live in precisely the kind of a working man's cottage described as typical. I expect to be very happy.

"The man I am going to marry is older than his years. The experiences he has gone through, particularly those in the armies of General Denikin, have broadened and developed him beyond his years. I have always been sympathetic with Russia and Russians. Its people I thing, have been such"—she groped for a word—"such good sports."

Her fiance is 23 years old and Mrs. Stephens is 45.

"His life has been tragic," she said. "His father was a chief of the gendarmerie at Warsaw and was killed by revolutionists in 1919. He does not know what happened to the other members of his family. He fled to Constantinople and when discharged from the army, came to Paris where I met him."

Mrs. Stephens said the Vonsiatskoy is heir to vast estates in southern Russia.

"We go on a short trip," she said, "and then will go to Ridley Park, N. J., where our home is ready for us. He is with the Baldwin Locomotive works and is going through all the various departments there. His employers want him to do that. I believe so that if the czar's government is restored, which Antase believes will happen, he will be equipped to be the country's representative."

Meanwhile in Philadelphia according to advices received here Vonsiatskoy told of his dreams as he worked in the great Baldwin plant.

"When Bolshevism goes Russia will need railroads," he said. "Why shouldn't I jump in the fight for my country's repuation and then some day I shall go with my bride and occupy my old home, then I will need to have part in my country's affairs. And what is more inspiring than the industry of steel? And what more necessary?

"People seem to think that there is something unusual in what I am doing. Yet the sons of American capitalists are sent into American factories to learn production of things fro mthe ground up. I shall not always be a laborer. But there is only one way to get experience and that is to get it in actual contact. That I am doing. Some day I shall know many things about steel and railroads."

URGES CARE OF VETERANS

Red Cross Speaker Tells Chapter That Reconstruction Still is its Greatest Duty.

Statements as to the economic condition in Europe today compared with that in America were made by Dr. S. E. Brewster of the Lake division of the American Red Cross Wednesday afternoon at the Red Cross meeting held in Taylor hall.

Dr. Brewster is a very interesting speaker and gave his address without announcing a subject, saying that he was just going to "think out loud."

He pointed out that the conditions in America compared with those abroad brought about by the war, were much better financially, and spoke of the famine districts.

Dr. Brewster said that he was very much disappointed in the reception and response the American people gave the ex-service men on their return and since. He said that they were urged to do their duty and patted on the back with the assurance that they would be placed when they returned and taken care of. In Cleveland now, he stated there are hundreds of ex-service men and their families housed in tenements. They are greatly in need and many of them ill. In talking of the effect of poison gas on the ex-service men he said that any man who was gassed, no matter how slightly, can not be sure that he will not contract tuberculosis before 1926. Americans he said thought that their responsibility ceased with the armistice.

Dr. Brewster aimed to impress upon the Red Cross that its work, that of reconstruction must go on, and not only to confine its efforts to reconstruction but to properly instruct the young in living. He scored the young people of today and said that they were unstable in morals, proving his assertion from tests taken at colleges and advanced schools. He attributed much of the immorality of today to dancing and wild parties, and said that jazz must go before the morals improve. He then told of his travels in Africa and said that jazz music is exactly like that pounded out of crude instruments of the heathens in the jungle, and said that he believed that the existing immorality was due to vulgar dancing more than anything else.

In conclusion Dr. Brewster returning to economic conditions stated that he did not believe that any person in the audience would live to see normalcy in America.

EASTERN GROUNDHOG FAILS TO SEE SHADOW

New York, Feb. 2—It looks like an early spring. That is, if any reliance is to be placed in signs, for the groundhog snooped his way out of his hole today blinked a bit at the light, swept the horizon with a calculating eye, then noted his plump form was unaccompanied by a shadow. So he remained out and took the air for a spell.

This is groundhog day and superstition that the absence of the little fellow's shadow on his first winter appearance presages an early spring.

EMMONS' BOND IS $15,000

Columbus Police File Three Charges of Burglary Against Newark Youth in Municipal Court.

Isaac Emmons, 22, of East Main street, was bound over to the grand jury in Franklin county yesterday from the municipal court at Columbus on three charges of burglary. Bond was fixed at $15,000 and on failure to furnish it he was remanded to the county jail to await action of the April term of the grand jury.

Emmons was caught while in the fraternity because of the Zeta Beta Tau's at Ohio State University last Friday morning about 5:30. When captured he claimed that he had entered the wrong fraternity house by mistake. Other stories told by him in an effort to get away made the fraternity men suspicious and Emmons was turned over to the Columbus police for investigation.

A detective came to Newark Saturday afternoon and found four suitcases full of clothes, jewelry and other articles at Emmons' home.

The license number of the Ford roadster which Emmons has had since last September disclosed the ownership of the car the fact that it had been stolen from Pittsburgh during that month. Emmons, according to the Columbus police, confessed to the theft of the car and of various thefts in fraternity houses at Ohio State.

MAY GET CABLE LICENSE.

Washington, Feb. 2—Issuance by the state department of a licence to the Western Union Telegraph company for the landing of its Barbadoes cable at Miami, Fla., may be expected within a few days, it was indicated today by officials of the department.

MELLON SHOWS HOW BONUS IS TO BE RAISED

Increased Postage Rates and Special Taxes Proposed.

Says Tax on Light Wine and Beer is Not Practicable.

Washington, Feb. 2.—With the present high tension on the prohibition question" it would not be practicable to undertake the bonus payment with a tax on light wines and beer," Secretary Mellon declared to lay before the house ways and means committee.

The soldier bonus should be paid out of special taxes, such as increased first and second class postage and tobacco levies, Secretary Mellon declared today before the house ways and means committee.

Secretary Mellon reiterated his belief that it would be impracticable to depend upon the foreign debt for financing the proposed "five way" adjusted compensation plan because the revenue from that source is problematical.

One cent increase in first class postage $70,000,000.

Increased second class postage to wipe out deficits in that branch of the post office department $30,000,000.

Increased cigarette tax; increasing amount to fifty cents on one thousand $25,000,000.

Increased tobacco tax, two cents a pound $5,000,000.

Increased documentary stamp tax $40,000,000.

A tax of two cents on each bank check $30,000,000.

The total estimated return from these taxes $300,000,000.

MORE WINTER IS FORECAST

Groundhog Returns to Den For Six Weeks of Bad Weather, But Blue Birds Say Nay.

The legend of the ground hog, who has seen his shadow today, and the appearance of blue birds, as reported in Hudson avenue, are a bit conflicting. The pessimist and the optimist, both should feel encouraged. For the first foretells six weeks more of winter weather. The blue birds, however, bespeak the spring tra la la.

Then again, New York got all perky this morning because the sun hid from the ground-hog, and he couldn't find his shadow. ('Spose the girls who attended Madam X's fashion show the other day, where the absence of stocking of any kind for the summer's "best dressers" was declared the thing, will hasten to try out the new style now.)

But the sun in this vicinity beat most of the early risers out, and if another bit of fiction concerning the weather has any effect, the remainder of the winter is to resemble the worst in a March zephyr for they do say that the first three days of February are symbolic of the ensuing days.

MOVIE DIRECTOR IS MURDERED

Body is Found in Los Angeles Home With Bullet Wound in His Neck.

Los Angeles, Feb. 2—William D. Taylor, director in chief for one of the largest film companies operating here and nationally known in the moving picture indutstry was found dead at his home here today under circumstances that the police said indicated murder. He had been shot through the neck.

SHOOTS TWO; KILLS SELF

Cleveland, Feb. 2—George Lakins shot and seriously wounded his wife and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Leora Zubnick at noon today and then shot and killed himself. The shooting is the outcome of a series of quarrels between the couple and the sister-in-law, it was said.

Horrors of Russia Related By Quaker Relief Worker

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—Graphic pictures of light-heartedness amid tragedy—the cheering smile of America amid the starving hordes of Russia—are drawn by Beulah A. Hurley, of New Hope, Pa., now a member of the Quaker relief unit, in a letter from the Volga district to the headquarters of the unit here.

After describing the utter desolation in her own immediate district where the bodies of the dead are "piled up in trenches like so much cordwood, the piles visible a quarter of a mile away," Miss Hurley tells of having received a letter from another relief worker, Doris White, whose station is 40 miles from a railroad.

Miss White "begged for more help," Miss Hurley said, but asked that they "send some one with no heart, for it was a cruel task." She reported that "cannibalism has begun in the outlying districts and an old woman and a child of nine have followed the cats and dogs that already have been consumed."

Miss Hurley reached the famine area of the Volga in the middle of December and is taking charge of the distribution of Quaker relief among 15,000,000 hunger-ridden people in the Bazuluk district.

"We were pulled into Bazuluk in the small hours of the morning one week ago, our car hitched to the tail of a freight and we are still here in our houseboat on rails," the letter begins. "We had frozen so fast to the rails that a locomotive couldn't move us and it had to back off and give us a kick. The kick upset the soup, but it hit nothing but one seat and the side of a fur hat, presently the tea water also upset and it washed the soup off the fur hat and we are all tidy again."

Thirteen relief workers cook, eat and live in a small box car, Miss Hurley relates. Five of them also sleep in the same car, yet their life "is a luxury to the type of life we see all around us."

"Scarcely a day goes by that we do not see a deady body lying along the road or in the market place and three days ago a father and mother and two children dropped in the snow together.

"At night one can hear cries and pleading of the crowds at the station trying to seek a bit of warmth and every morning the frozen bodies must be carried away from the entrance. The cemetery itself is a ghastly place where bodies are piled up in trenches like so much cordwood. The clothing is always stripped from the bodies for it is too precious to be lost."

Answers Edison's Questions Correctly; Wins Bride

Saml. A. Halsey was the only man who answered all the questions of the famous Edison quiz correctly. Edison rated him AA. Then he won the heart of Miss Charlotte W. Hawkins, sister of Mrs. Charles A. Edison, wife of the wizard's son. Photo shows him with his bride.

27,000 Canadian Veterans Settled On Homesteads

Ottawa, Feb. 2—Exactly 27,371 Canadian war veterans have been settled on the land under the provisions of the soldier settlement act, says an official report by the dominion government.

Of these, 21,246 have been granted government loans totalling $87 497,815, an average of more than $4,000 per settler for the purchase of land, permanent improvements thereon, stock and equipment. The remaining 6,125 were settled on land forming part of the public domain without financial assistance. The report adds 467 settlers already have repaid their loans in full.

The work of getting the returned soldiers back to the land is still progressing. There have been 62,436 applications for the privileges of the act, the report states, and 44,723 of the applicants have qualified. There are 520 men in training in agricultural schools and 3,110 have completed training and are awaiting allocation to farms.

The province of Alberta leads in the number of soldier settlers with 6,203 to whom the government has loaned $2[illegible],[illegible]91,095. Saskatchewan has 5,1[illegible]5 settlers, who received in loans $21,332,444.

Other provinces rank: Manitoba, [illegible] settlers, $14,[illegible],189 loans; British Columbia, [illegible] settlers, $13,604,929; Ontario, 1,582 settlers, $6,802,[illegible]87; Quebec 417 settlers, $2,075,[illegible]; New Brunswick [illegible]6 settlers, $1,738,611; Nova Scotia 98[illegible] settlers, $[illegible],[illegible]43,868; Prince Edward Island [illegible]80 settlers, $923,58[illegible].

EXPECT EARLY CHOICE ON POPE

Cardinals Retire to the Seculsion of Vatican to Select Successor to Pope Benedict.

Rome, Feb. 2—The conclave of the sacred college which is to elect a successor to Pope Benedict XV began its sittings today. The cardinals who are in Rome went into seclusion last night, and when the great oak barrier at the entrance of the court yard of St. Damaso was closed they were cut off from communication with the outside world until their task was done.

The balloting is not expected to consume more than two days and the next pope, in the consensus of opinion in Vatican circles, will come from among the moderate section of the sacred college. Neither the "irreconcilables" nor the "peace party" which favors closer relations with the Italian government is understood to have enough votes to elect its candidate, the moderates holding the balance of power.

The confidence that the conclave would be of short duration was shown by Cardinal Gasparri who in making provisions yesterday for the sustenance of the cardinals only provided menus for today, tomorrow and Saturday. Others who believed the election would be brief pointed out that the cardinals generally were in favor of a continuation of the late pontiff's policy and that there was therefore nothing to do but choose a man who would follow that program.

As the conclave convened it appeared that the "irreconcilables" and the peace party under Gasparri could each count on about 20 votes.

FRANCE BOUND TO CONFERENCE

Note to Italy Indicates That Supreme Council Members are Pledged to Attend Genoa Parley.

Paris, Feb. 2.—France will be officially represented at the international economic and financial conference at Genoa early next month.

The assurance of France's attendance was given in a communique from the foreign office which does not say in so many words that France will be represented but lets it be understood that she is already committed as a member of the supreme council.

The statement is in the form of a denial that Premier Poincare had telegraphed yesterday to Premier Bonomi of Italy accepting his invitation to the conference. The announcement reads:

"Contrary to an announcement published in certain newspapers, it is inexact that the French government made known yesterday by telegram addressed to Rome that she accepted the invitation to participate in the conference at Genoa."

"As the premier explained in the chamber of deputies Premier Bonomi in convoking the conference merely executed the decision taken at Cannes by the allied powers, including France. It is in the name of the supreme council that he sent the invitations and it was also at Cannes that the program was adopted.

"Therefore, there is no occasion for the French government to give formal acceptance on either point."

In political circles it was explained that the communique was intended to establish that France was already bound under former Premier Briand's action at the Cannes conference of the supreme council.

MARMOTA MONAX SEES HIS SHADOW

Youngstown, Feb. 2—The Mahoning county ground hog coming out for his traditional weather prophecy, today, cast a shadow which the avaricious observer said almost cracked the rock under which marmota monax has his home. It was one of the brightest of the winter.

SECOND DEGREE VERDICT FOR TRIPLE KILLING

Wilmington, Feb. 2—T. O. Vandervort was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury in common pleas court here this morning in connection with the triple killing of his divorced wife, Bertha, his mother in law Mrs. Susan Whitlow and Howard Bosier. Vandervort was tried on the charge of killing Mrs. Whitlow.

MAN ARRESTED FOR BREAKING WIFE'S THIGH

Marion, Feb. 2—James W. Egan will be given a hearing in mayor's court here this afternoon on a charge of cruelly punishing his wife. Police allege Egan broke his wife's thigh.

PEN SENTENCES FOR BOOTLEGGER

Two Old Statutes Found Providing Prison Sentences For Those Who Adulterate Liquor.

Columbus, Feb. 2—Two old laws providing penitentiary and jail sentences for the manufacture and selling of liquor containing an active poison and for adulterating or selling of adulterated liquor, are to be used in the prosecution of bootleggers in Ohio, according to announcement made today by officials of the Ohio Anti-saloon league.

These laws, passed before the advent of prohibition were almost forgotten until unearthed at Cleveland by Sheriff Stannage and Judge Walther of the common pleas court. One statute provides a sentence from one to five years on a conviction of manufacturing liquor containing an active poison and the other provides a workhouse sentence of from 20 to 60 days for adultering or selling adulterated liquors.

Practically all bootleg liquor is adulterated the Anti-saloon league officials pointed out. The old laws they said, will make penitentiary and workhouse sentences possible in practically every bootlegging case.

"Bootleggers who might otherwise get off with a fine can be prosecuted under these old laws and if convicted will have to be sent to jail," said one league official. "After a few convictions under these laws, bootlegging won't be such an open game."

First prosecutions under these old laws are expected to be made in Cleveland following a raid made Tuesday by the sheriff's office. Other such prosecutions will be started at once in other portions of the state, league officials said.

UTICA PLANT IN OPERATION

Licking Window Glass Company Reopens Factory Closed Since January 1921—Four Shifts At Work.

Utica, Feb. 2—The Licking Glass factory started with a full force of men Tuesday night at midnight. Four shifts are again at work, each shift involving six hours. The changes are made at 12 o'clock midnight, 6 o'clock morning, 12 o'clock noon and 6 o'clock evening. This is the first the Licking company has operated since Jan. 15, 1921.

The fox hunt held east of town Tuesday morning did not prove quite so successful as the others around here have been. About 200 or 400 persons took part, and not a fox was rounded up.

Quite a few workmen that worked at the Licking factory, before when they were running, but went other places when they were shut down, have returned. Among them are T. Dindle and Warren Routzen, both of Findlay; Eddie Smith of Mt. Vernon, George and Paul Hart both of Muncie, Ind.

Russ Jacobs has gone to Salem, W. Va., to work in the glass factory there.

Wm. Bowe, Frank Loyd and Frank Bennett, all glass cutters, left Tuesday evening for Masontown, Pa., to work in the glass factory there.

ARMS DELEGATES IN COMMITTEE SESSIONS

Washington, Feb. 2—Final consummation of the naval limitation treaty and settlement of the Shantung controversy gave the arms delegates a free field for action today on pending far eastern questions and a crowded program of committee and delegation meetings had been arranged to begin the final wind up of this branch of the conference negotiations. A meeting of the Far Eastern committee of the whole also had been called for later in the day.

GOVERNMENT PREPARES FOR BIG COAL STRIKE

Washington, Feb. 2—Plans of the government to cope with the situation which might arise in the event of a strike of coal miners when the present agreements expire at the end of next month are being worked out by the department of justice, it was indicated today by Attorney General Daugherty.

The attorney general said he was closely watching conditions in the coal industry as they developed, as well as the proposed junction of the railroad workers of the United Mine workers to resist wage decreases but stated that he was not yet ready to make known the government's policy.

Defiance: William Orr, 65, bachelor, died in a fire which destroyed the barn on his farm, five miles southwest of Hicksville.

FORD'S OFFER PASSED ON TO U. S. CONGRESS

Completion of Plant Suggested to Furnish Employment.

Government Must Provide 40 Millions to Finish Project.

Washington, Feb. 2—Henry Ford's proposal for the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, was submitted today by Secretary Weeks, for "such action as congress may deem appropriate. The only suggestions contained in the letter of transmission related to specific clauses in the contract and the desirability of amendments which would, in the event the proposal be accepted by congress, further safeguard the government's interests.

Otherwise the secretary of war carefully avoids reference to congressional action involving the ultimate acceptance or rejection of the offer as submitted.

"In the event Mr. Ford's proposal is accepted," Secretary Weeks declared, "the government must make new appropriations amounting to $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 of which Mr. Ford will have the benefit for approximately 100 years at four per cent."

In the event the offer be rejected, the secretary gave it as his opinion "that dam No. 2 (Wilson dam) should be completed by the government and the power requirements for commercial purposes, the benefits to navigation as well as the possible needs of the government would warrant this expenditure."

"If this were done," he continues, "the government may itself undertake to sell the product to the best advantage. In such case the amount of the government's present proposed investment would be very materially reduced, because dam No. 3, costing from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000, would not be built.

"This partial installation" the secretary explains, "would effect a saving of present investment in least the sum of $3,000,000, leaving according to the chief of engineer's estimate, not to exceed $22,000,000 to be invested by the government at this time instead of $40,000,000 to $50,000,000.

"At this time" the secretary points out, "when there is a large amount of unemployment, it is not without importance to consider the advantage to the nation of the employment of the large amount of labor required in undertaking this development. I, therefore urge that congress give due consideration to this matter, not only to settle a controverted question, but to furnish employment on a large scale."

The secretary explains his action in sending the offer to congress by declaring he is without authority in law to accept Mr. Ford's offer, or to "dispose of the property as a whole either by sale or by lease," and that "it is peculiarly the province of congress to weigh the considerations which will pass to the respective parties to the proposed arrangement."

"I believe it would be a better policy," the secretary wrote, "to limit the contract to a term of 50 years (instead of 100) to conform with the established policy of the federal government as set out in the water power act."

The secretary also suggested a modification by congress of the proposal so that in the event the operating company to be created failed to carry out performance of the contract, some penalty would be imposed for such failure.

Secretary Weeks outlined to congress the voluminous offer by Mr. Ford in this way.

"Mr. Ford offers to undertake the completion of the No. 2 and the construction of dam No. 3, according to the government's plans, for which he shall be reimbursed the actual cost, and to lease the dams and power plants at an annual rental equivalent to 4 per cent of the cost to the government of completing dam No. 2 and constructing dam No. 3 (exclusive of the cost of acquiring lands and flowage rights necessary for dam number 3).

"His offer places upon the United States the responsibility for repair and maintenance of the two dams other than the powerhouses, which powerhouses and electrical equipment he agrees to maintain at his own expense in efficient operating condition.

"As a condition of this offer he asks that the United States sell to him nitrate plants No. 1 and No. 2, the Waco quarry, and the Gorgas warrior steam plant, for the sum of $5,000,000 payable $1,000,000 in cash, the balance in annual instalments of $1,000,000 each with 5 per cent interest in deferred payments.

"As a further consideration to the government he agrees to operate nitrate plant No. 2 at the approximate present annual capacity of its machinery and equipment in the production of nitrogen and other fertilizer compound throughout the lease period, and to maintain it in its present state of readiness, or its equivalent, for immediate operation.

ISOLATION RULES ARE DEFINED BY KNAUSS

In speaking of the prevailing epidemic of diphtheria and scarlet fever and the fact that it has spread through families, Health Commissioner Dr. W. H. Knauss said that very often several cases have developed in a family because they will not keep the patient isolated, and do not seem to understand what isolation means. He said that one day the patient if not serious, will be found in an upstairs room and the next day will be down stairs on a couch with the family, and in a few days a new case develops.

On Tuesday a new case of scarlet fever developed in a family which is the second case, the family still being in quarantine.

Dr. Knauss asked that the following rules on isolation be read and practiced in families where the disease is.

"Isolation of the Sick—Within the house the patient and nurse should if possible be entirely isolated from the rest of the family. These precautions will be observed, so far as expedient

1. "Strip" the room by removing everything not absolutely necessary to the comfort of the patient and the health of the nurse.

2 If these articles are presumably infected, take them to another room and there disinfect them by the appropriate method.

3 Disinfect the remainder of the house if there is reason to believe it infected.

4 Set aside a separate lavatory for the patient, if possible.

5 Nasal, throat, and other discharges must be received in vessels partly filled with a standard disinfectant solution and after sufficient time, disposed of. Japanese napkins or soft rags disposed of in the same way are permissible for nose and throat secretions, and for cleansing mouth and lips.

6 If vessels are to be handled by others, the outside of the vessel should be cleansed with the standard solution before allowing it to leave the sick room and the hands of the person receiving it must also be disinfected as soon as the vessel is returned to the nurse

7 If there is a stove or grate in the room, it should be used to destroy all soiled cloths and papers and scraps of food, or, they may be put into paper bags and burned in stove or furnace outside or coal oiled and burned in the open air

8. Dishes must be disinfected by placing in a standard solution for one-half hour before washing or removal from the room; or, placed in hot water and kept actually boiling for 20 minutes If possible, dishes and tableware should not be returned to the kitchen for washing, but the same ones washed and kept in the room, the dishwater being sterilized as in the next paragraph.

8. The patient must be bathed daily, and the hands and face often, at least twice daily The bath water must then have 120th its bulk of carbolic acid or 1 40th its bulk of cresol added well stirred into solution and allowed to stand for one hour before carrying out.

9 The floor must be swept daily, using sawdust moistened with a standard disinfectant solution to keep the dust down.

10 If an interior door must be used for communication, it should have a curtain made of a heavy sheet hung over it, which should be kept moist at first with 1 500 bichloride solution and afterwards with water This door must be kept closed except when it is absolutely necessary for some one to pass.

11. Good ventilation into the open air must be maintained at all times for the sake of both patient and nurse.

12 Flies and mosquitoes must be absolutely excluded by screens and any in the room must be destroyed.

Dr Knauss said that if these rules on isolation were followed the disease would not spread through the families.

Give It to Them—

This trial tube—watch their teeth improve

If you prefer, let your children make this test. Let them brush their teeth a few days in this modern way. Then look and see what film removal means.

This is a way to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. Millions now employ it. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. Let someone in your home this week show the benefits it brings.

Why teeth look dingy

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. It dims and may ruin teeth.

Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively combat it. So film-coats have been almost universal.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, and, despite the tooth brush, they have constantly increased.

Must remove it daily

Dental science has long been seeking a daily film combatant. Now two effective methods have been found. Authorities have proved them by many careful tests.

A new-day tooth paste has been perfected, to comply with modern requirements. And these two film combatants are embodied in it. The name of the tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Millions of people of some forty races now employ it daily, largely by dental advice.

Two other new effects

Pepsodent brings two other effects which authorities now deem essential.

It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids which cause decay.

Every application gives these great tooth-protecting forces multiplied effect.

Real protection now

Now you can know what really clean teeth mean. Pepsodent fights film-coats, starch and acids—all the great tooth enemies. Then it leaves the mouth in normal alkaline condition. The glistening teeth you see everywhere now show something of the benefits it brings.

New beauty in a week

The Pepsodent effects are quickly seen and felt. This test will be a revelation to you.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Note the refreshing taste it leaves.

It will bring you prettier teeth, and quickly. But, more than that, it will bring you safer teeth. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil you will know them by their olive color Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

A Bible Thought for Today.

PRIDE A PITFALL:—Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.—Proverbs 16:18.

THE PRESIDENT'S FUNCTION.

There are two conceptions of the function of the president in his relation with congress. One is that he is simply one of two co-ordinate branches, each of them wholly independent of the other. It is not his business to tell Congress what to do, more than to make such recommendations as seem wise to him. The president and congress are supposed to work along their separate lines and not to interfere with each other. This seems to be largely President Harding's view.

The other theory is that the president is the official agent of the country with a mandate to give the leadership that the country needs, and to use all his influence to get laws enacted that the people demand. This was President Wilson's theory. The Republicans called him a dictator, because he exercised pressure over Congress to get needed laws passed.

The people, however, care little about punctilios. What they want is to get results, and they admire a president that has a strong and achieving personality, and can exercise so powerful an influence over Congress that that body will function efficiently.

Congress is almost always torn by factional and sectional feeling and it fails to get results unless the president exercises forceful leadership. The people do not of course want a dictator who stifles debate and allows congress no independent judgment. But they do expect such leadership on the part of the president, that his own party will act with some unity and pass a good program of legislation.

This is what President Wilson secured from the congresses that were under Democratic control, but President Harding has not so far been able thus to harmonize the representatives of his party in congress. As a result they dwadle away their time and waste their energy in factional quarrels.

THE SHORTER CATECHISM.

Since when did it become good form for a President to address Congress?

Since Warren G. Harding became president.

When was it autocratic, tyrannical, pretentious, dictatorial?

When Woodrow Wilson was president.

When was it wrong for a president to ignore the Jones shipping act?

When Wilson was president. Stupid!

When did the same act become wise, patriotic, statesmanlike?

When Harding did the same thing.

It is denied that the boys in the co-ed colleges are devoting all their time to athletics, as they put in a lot of it chasing after the girls.

The business men who do not dare to go ahead in an enterprising way will be complaining later because they have no luck.

There can't be any concert of nations while each one of them demands to be a soloist.

Let's be done with Wiggle and Wobble.

IT WILL

Now, if it should ever occur to the farmers that the fundamental cause of their inability to sell their crops lies in the disturbed states of the world, and that the best available cure would be the League of Nations, either as it stands or suitably modified, then, in that event, there might be interesting political developments. A good many people believe that the only certain way to end the existing paralysis of our foreign trade is to join the League of Nations, and a good many others believe that joining the League would be at least the quickest and surest way of restoring prosperity.

If that idea should become widespread among the farmers, the probable consequences are obvious. Already Washington gets from the West a state of thought which expresses itself in the slogan: "If a league of four nations, why not a league of forty-seven nations?" This slogan, of course, is not an accurate comparison of the four Power treaty with the League of Nations. Slogans rarely are strictly accurate but that does not diminish their political potency.

One of the most prominent Republicans in the country says that success for his party in the elections next fall is menaced by the fact that the Administration in calling the Washington conference and entering into the four Power treaty has forfeited the only clear issue that the Republicans had, which was the contrast between isolation and the League of Nations. If the farmers ever get the idea that their business interest are intimately tied up with our participatitin either in the League of Nations altogether or in economic conferences, the effect will be immediate and great.—Mark Sullivan in Springfield Sun.

Did You Know.

That khaki was first used in British India in 1848 by Sir Henry Burnett Lumsden? He had been asked to equip a corps of guides to conduct an English force on the northwestern frontier of India and chose khaki because of its fitness for uniforms in the climate of India. The material was a light cotton drill and took its name from the native word meaning dusty, the term applying more to the color than the texture of the cloth. Afterward uniforms of the same color were made of serge for use in colder climates and this material also received the name of khaki.

Q. I see that a ship from Australia carried wombats, wallabies and Tasmanian devils? What are these? E. C. D.

A. A wallaby is any of the various small and medium-sized kangaroos. A wombat has a thick heavy body, short legs and rudimentary tail, resembling in general form a small bear. The Tasmanian devil is a burrowing animal with coarse hair, mostly jet black. Though no larger than a badger, it is very savage and sometimes destroys sheep.

Q. How many pounds pressure is there in an automobile cylinder when the charge is compressed ready for firing? R. R. C.

A. There are from [illegible] to 115 pounds of pressure in an automobile cylinder when the charge is compressed ready for firing.

Q. What does Bar-le-Duc mean? R. D.

A. Bar-le-Duc means, in French, the duke's citadel. Bar-le-Duc dates from the six century when it was the residence of the Dukes of Bar. The town produces excellent wine and a variety of currant jam which bears its name.

Q. Who in the Bible refused to go to war without a prophetess? J. E.

A. Barak, son of Abinoam, refused to go to battle against Jabin's army unless accompanied by the prophetess Deborah.

Q. What place was known as Bank-side? F. P. G.

A. The south bank of the Thames river between Blackfriars and Waterloo bridges is known as Bankside. The famous Globe theater stood there in Shakespeare's time.

Q. Is it correct to say "per week," and "per day?" J. W.

A. The use of this Latin preposition is not sanctioned in English. One should say "a week" and "a day."

Q. How long is the race course at Ascot Heath? J. W.

A. This famous English race course is almost exactly two miles. It was laid out 29 miles from London in 1711, by order of Queen Anne.

Q. What is the longest golf hole ever made in a single shot from the tee? J. H.

A. The 17th hole at Henley-On-Thames that was made in one by A. C. Ladd in the Autumn of 1912. The hole measures 330 yards. Several persons witnessed this performance.

Q. What is a "tommy shop?" R. C. S.

A. In England a "tommy" was the slang name for a penny roll and in time was applied to all bread and provisions. A "tommy shop" was an establishment where the workers were paid in goods instead of in money.

Q. Was there at any time a flag or coat-of-arms of France represented by three frogs and fleur-de-lis? B. H.

A. The device of the ancient Kings of France was composed of "three toads, erect, saltant." The fleur-de-lis was definitely adopted as part of the French coat-of-arms in 1180. 1376 Charles V made his coat-of-arms consist of three fleurs-de-lis of gold on a blue ground.

Q. The brick in our house is streaked with white. What causes this and what will remove it? G. E. A.

A. The geological survey says that the white substance which comes to the surface of the bricks whe nit rains is the soluble salt in the brick. This remains after the bricks are dry. There is no remedy for this except to wash the brick with water.

GERMANY POOR; STINNES IS RICH

His Rise to Wealth and Power Has Been Spectacular.

Some See in Him "New Shadow on the World."

(By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.)

New York City, Feb. 2.—An exasperating feature of Germany's inability to pay its war debts, at least in the eyes of its victorious neighbors, is the present enormous prosperity of one German—Hugo Stinnes. The old Germany of the Hohenzollerns is crushed and beaten and bankrupt, but the new Germany, which is largely under the control of Stinnes, is quite lively and vigorous and by no means poverty-stricken. Yet it cannot be attached by its creditors, because, while the idea has been suggested, the Allies do not feel at liberty to attach the property of a private individual.

"It's really quite annoying," explains an American who has just returned from Europe. "The allies have found themselves in much the same position as the creditors of the man who thoughtfully transfers all of his valuable property to his wife a few days before declaring his insolvency. Of course, Germany did not act deliberately but the fact remains that the majority of its natural and industrial resources seem to have passed into the hands of Stinnes during the war. It was a case of when the allies got there the cupboard was bare."

Just how much of Germany Stinnes owns is not precisely known. Some say he owns practically all of it. Others assert that his wealth and power have been greatly overestimated. One hears all sorts of strange and fantastic rumors concerning him. There are those who insist that he plans for the reinstatement of the Hohenzollerns with himself in the position of premier, while others declare that he is working for the complete socialization of the German state. Some sees in him the most stabilizing factor in the new relations of Europe, and others point to him as "the new shadow on the world." At any rate, whatever may be his secret aims, he is unquestionably the most picturesque and disturbing personality in Europe today.

In the first place Europe is not as accustomed to billion-dollar capitalists as we are here in America, and the sudden rise of such a phenomenon against the general, poverty-stricken background of Germany is sufficiently novel to attract attention all over the world. In the second place, Stinnes has not limited his activities to one industrial line, but is engaged in a wide variety of enterprises, including mining, coal trade, ocean and river shipping, electric power plants, gas plants, export and import, lumber mills, iron and steel foundaries, hotels, tourist travel, the development of health resorts and the publication of newspapers. He is said to own a chain of 60 newspapers, scattered throughout German and neighboring countries.

Indeed, there is no important industrial enterprises in Germany, to all accounts, with which Hugo Stinnes is not connected. To keep the concerns in which he is interested going he can use his own coal, his own steel, his own timber. He is gradually accumulating a mercantile fleet which, it is predicted, will be twice the size of the pre-war fleet of the Hamburg-American line, and "which will be entirely outside the control of the Allies." He is reported to have an agent, or a staff of agents, in every important foreign port, many of whom are not openly but secretary in his employ. His agencies in Russia are said to be particularly important and powerful, and it is believed that his clever negotiations with British capitalists are responsible for the fact that the Soviet government has been recognized and that Russia is once more in commercial communication with the world. In short, Stinnes appears to be a whole nation in himself.

It is no wonder, then, that he has captured the imagination of Europe, and that the German people marvel at his energy and ability—especially since the man was scarcely known before the war. His rise has been sudden, and achieved solely through his own extraordinary ability and effort. As an American newspaper man puts it, "Stinnes burst like a comet upon the astonished post-war world." Yet he is not what we Americans call a self-made man, for he inherited a considerable fortune, as well as his superior business genius, from his grandfather. "When he was born on February 22, 1870," writes his admiring biographer, Dr. Herman Brickmeyer, "there lay ready to his hand the means by which he might achieve the tremendous results upon which he can now look back."

The grandfather, Matthias Stinnes, according to Dr. Brickmeyer, settled in Mulheim on the Rhine in 1808, where he soon became known for his courage, strong will and business sagacity. He invested his small capital in coal barges and gradually built up an important coal-carrying line between Cologne and Holland. After a time he established his own ship-building plant and began constructing his own barges, so that by 1820 the number of craft owned by the Stinnes firm had increased to 65.

Twenty years later, however, when the practicality of the steamboat had been well-established, Matthias Stinnes decided to scrap his slow, horse-towed barges in favor of steam power. This substitution was bitterly opposed by the Rhinelanders, who had been furnishing the horses for towing the barges and disliked to see a good source of profit swept away. Stinnes was informed that upon the appearance of the first steamboat used to tow his barges, there would be trouble.

This warning proved to be accurate. When the first steamboat arrived at a certain point near Neuwied-on-the-Rhine, it was greeted with a volley of rifle shots from the bank. But to the discomforture of the enemy, the steamboat swept haughtily on, scorning to notice such interference; for Matthias Stinnes had taken the precaution to place his steersman in an invlunerable, armored turret. After that, the the Rhinelanders resigned themselves to the invitable.

When Matthais Stinnes died in 1845 his business had expanded enormously so that it included not only river shipping but mining and the marketing of coal. It had become so complicated and varied, in fact, that one man could scarcely handle it, but Matthais II somehow managed to take care of it and keep it in the possession of the family, which included his three brothers and three sisters. Upon his death in 1853, he passed the responsibility on to Gustav, the oldest of the three brothers, and the father of the amazing Hugo Stinnes who now engages the attention of the world.

Hugo exhibited unusual talent for managing his share of the Stinnes possessions at an early age. Confining his education to commercial subjects, he entered the Stinnes firm when he became 19, but soon felt the need for larger fields to conquer. Accordingly, two years later he established his own firm, laying the foundation for an independent career. Not until the outbreak of the war, however, did he find his real opportunity for complete self-expression.

The history of all his skillful manipulations would make a pretty tale, but suffice it to say that he entered the war period only a moderately rich man and came out with billions. And since the armistice he has achieved even greater wealth and power.

In amusing contrast to his spectacular exploits is the personal appearance of the man himself, who is described by Dr. Brickmeyer, his biographer, as resembling nothing so much as "a wandering lump of coal."

"He has a compact body," writes Brickmeyer, "upon which is set a big head. His hair is close-cropped, black; his face large and pale, his beard black as coal, his nose bent, his eyes deep-set. 'An Assyrian King'—that is what a German paper recently dubbed him.

"His manner is absolutely without pose—straightforward, heavy, firm. He walks with a slight stoop, suffling along like a seafarer. His clothes and habits are simple.

"It is remarkable," he comments, "how the traits and leanings of old Matthias Stinnes have reappeared in his grandson. In him we find the same restless spirit, the same daring the same talent for combination and construction; but these powers find their application on an infinitely greater scale. Never in the economic history of Germany was the time so propitious as today for a constructive genius."

Advocate Will Receive Subscriptions To Wilson Fund

The campaign to endow the Woodrow Wilson Foundation is now under way with Capt. E. D. Leach, chairman of the Licking county organization. The goal is one million dollars. Every state has been organized and subscriptions are being received from every section of the country.

THE FOUNDATION

Created by public subscription in recognition of the national and international services of Woodrow Wilson, twice president of the United States, who furthered the cause of human freedom and was instrumental in pointing out effective methods for the co-operation of the liberal forces of mankind.

THE AWARD

The award or awards from the income of the Foundation will be made from time to time by a nationally constituted committee to the individual or group that has rendered within a specified period meritorius service to democracy, public welfare, liberal thought or peace through justice.

THE ADVOCATE FUND

The Advocate believes in the purpose of this Foundation to keep alive the ideals of a great American in such form that they will be both an inspiration and a reward to other men whose ambition it is to "enable the world to live more amply, with greater vision, with a finer spirit of achievement." All gifts will be acknowledged. All givers will receive an artistic certificate which will mark the recipient as one of the founders of the Woodrow Wilson Awards. Subscriptions sent to the Advocate will be given to Chairman E. D. Leach.

The certificate will be issued from National Headquarters of the Foundation, 150 Nassau Street, New York City.

PURITY.

Captains Cleve Boyer and Raymend McPeek, each with a company of 20 picked men, are engaged in a three-weeks' war on rats, mice, sparrows, ground-hogs and other "varmints" in this community. The offensive will end February 21 and the victors will be guests of the members of the losing side at a supper served at the town hall here, Saturday night, February 25.

There will be a pie social at Concord school house Friday night, February 10.

Rev. W. H. Curtis filled his regular appointment at Eden Sunday morning and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Popham and baby, of Newark, were called here Monday by the illness of her sister, Miss Pearl Harris, who is suffering a severe attack of grip.

Miss Pearl Pennick is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Rolla Wilkin, who is recovering from a recent illness.

Mrs. Delbert Harris is visiting her sister, Mrs. Curt Black, of Knox county.

NOW DO MY WORK WITH EASE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Hornell, N.Y.—"I was in bad health but there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me. I was tired out all over and it was an effort for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly every one around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it, so at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like."—Mrs. CHAS. BAKER, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N.Y.

In almost every neighborhood there are women who know of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They know because they have taken it and have been helped. Why don't you give it a trial?

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

She could eat anything
—without indigestion or sleeplessness

For a time she had been troubled with gas after her evening meal. The distress was most painful after eating potatoes or other starchy foods, of which she was very fond.

Then she started taking two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every night between her evening meal and bedtime. She poured about a half cup of boiling hot water over the yeast cakes, stirred them thoroughly, added a little cold water and drank.

She found she could eat anything and sleep splendidly afterward.

Thousands of men and women are finding that Fleischmann's Yeast corrects stomach and intestinal troubles. It promotes the flow of bile and pancreatic juice. Appetite is always kept normal and you are protected against indigestion.

Add 2 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to your daily diet. You will find that your whole digestive system is greatly benefited. Be sure it's Fleischmann's Yeast—the familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label. Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast.

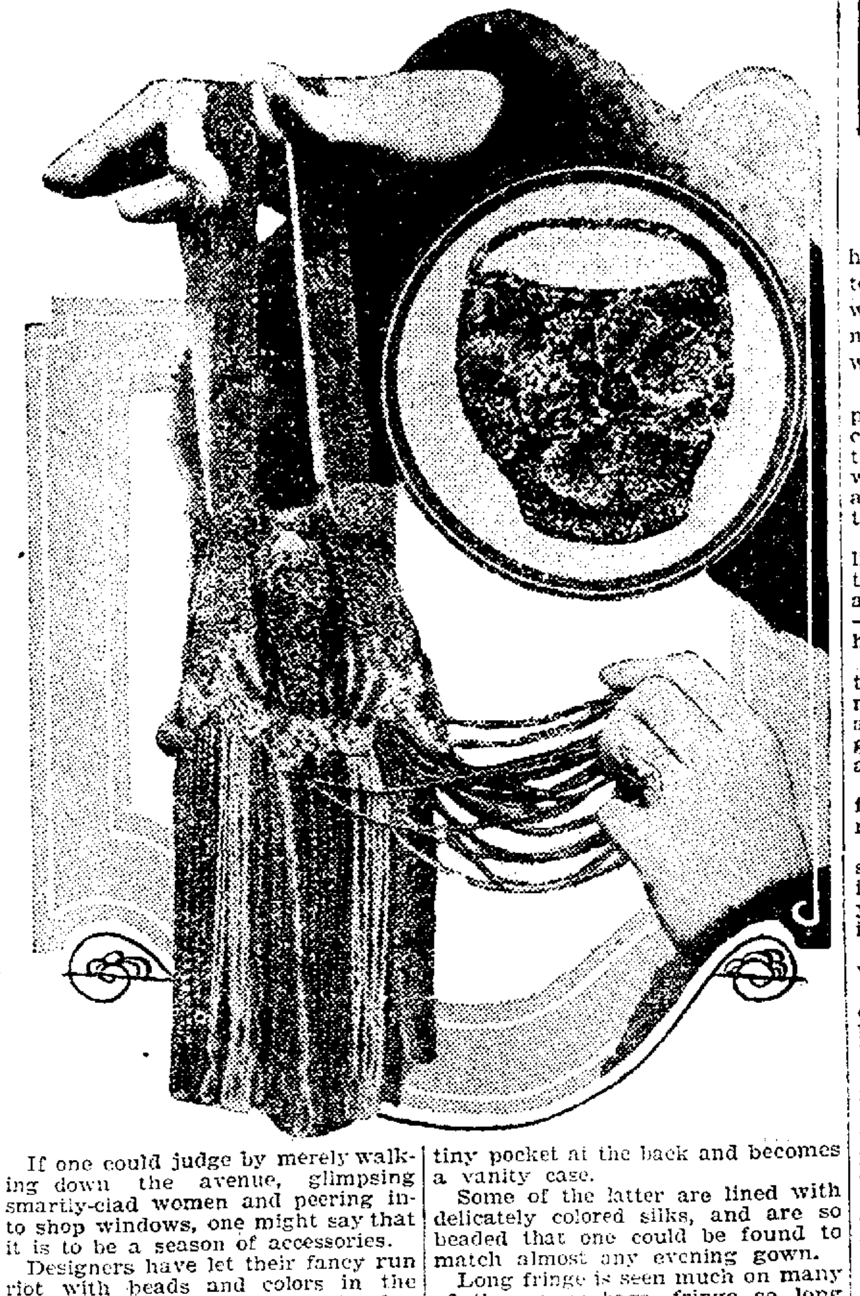
You will never lose your temper when you are the loser at a card party.

NEW MILLINERY DISPLAYS INDICATE BIG HAT IS VOGUE

Hats are large! There's no denying that Milady's tendency, when she dresses for afternoon or evening, is toward the large hat. This Ponch design, which trails a handsome feahter at the side, is of lightweight silk velvet suited especially for between-season wear.

The wide brim droops becomingly over the face. The crown is large and soft.

SMARTLY CLAD WOMEN LIKE THESE NOVELTY ACCESSORIES.



If one could judge by merely walking down the avenue, glimpsing smartly-clad women and peering into shop windows, one might say that it is to be a season of accessories.

Designers have let their fancy run riot with beads and colors in the fashioning of bags and cases for day and evening use.

Queer, gal little Chinamen strut about in queeh, gay little landscapes on Milady's beaded purse.

A single beaded flower, a rose, a pansy in natural coloring conceals a tiny pocket at the back and becomes a vanity case.

Some of the latter are lined with delicately colored silks, and are so beaded that one could be found to match almost any evening gown.

Long fringe is seen much on many of the newer bags, fringe so long and so thick that, like this Nouveaute model, the greater part of the purse itself is hidden. A combination of soft gray and red is used with black in the beading of this marvelously soft and lovely purse.

OBSERVE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WEEK

The week of February five to twelve, inclusive, will be observed by Christian Endeavor societies all over the world as Endeavor week. It will be celebrated by special programs, both religious and social.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Central Church of Christ is looking forward to a big week and the committees have planned some interesting events.

Sunday evening, February 5, a play, entitled "The Pill Bottle," will be given. This is under the direction of the Missionary committee. The play presents twenty-four characters, and embraces four scenes, the first setting being an American college, the ensuing ones somewhere in India. This play will be given in the church auditorium, at seven o'clock, taking the place of the regular Sunday evening church services.

Monday evening the Social committee will have charge. This is to be an open meeting, not only for Endeavorers, but for all the church members as well, and all others who are interested. The program includes a debate on some ludicrous question, for the entertainment of those present. There will be special music and refreshments.

Tuesday, the play, "The Pill Bottle," will be repeated. The Missionary committee has agreed to give this for the Licking County Christian Endeavor organization, this being their evening. It has not yet been decided in which church this will take place, but will be announced later.

Wednesday evening the prayer meeting committee will have charge. This will be a devotional meeting for the Endeavorers and open to all others.

Thursday evening comes the annual banquet. Miss Marguerite Farmer is in charge and a splendid program has been arranged, the principal speaker being Rev. J. J. Tisdall, of Columbus. The program also includes music and other entertainment.

Friday evening will be given over to the alumni council. The alumni of Central Church has just organized, and the program for this evening will enable those not familiar with the purposes and plans of the alumni movement to learn something of this new realm of Christian Endeavor activity.

There will be no meeting on Saturday night.

Sunday evening, February 12, Rev. J. H. McCartney will conclude Endeavor week with a sermon prepared for the occasion, at the regular church service hour.

NIBBLE BOX.

The nibble box has arrived! A nibble box? A small, cleverly ornamented box which Milady may keep near her bed. If she is wakeful during the night, nervous from an overcrowded day, a bite or two of a sweet cake will doubtless quiet her nerves and send her off to sleep. Thus the nibble box, with its burden of small sweet cakes, is fast becoming a part of every smartly appointed sleeping room.

FLOWERS FOR ORNAMENT.

A single, large flower of a vivid color is being used much at the waist line of handsome black evening gowns.

POLLY and PAUL ...and PARIS

By Zoe Beckley

CHAPTER XXI.
THE PAVEREL FROCK.

The brown-and-orange frock came home from Paverel's, and Polly took it from its tissue wrappings with trembling fingers. She could not afford to have this one go wrong.

She had watched every stage of its progress, from its silken lining, so carefuly fitted to her slim figure, to the last detail of its finish. And it was, she told herself holding it up against her, a perfect thing—a creation of art.

It was a joy just to look at the delicious luster of the silk, the rich tint of it, the way it "almost stood alone" as she propped it on the bed—like Aunt Sue's "best black" that had lasted 30 years!

Polly could hardly wait for Paul to come home and be shown the masterpiece. Of course it had cost a lot. But when you paid a lot and got something for it, there wasn't a feeling of guilt.

She heard her husband's step. Before he flung open the door, Polly rushed the dress out of sight.

"Oh, Paul, I've got something to show you!" She drew back, beaming, from her kiss of greeting. "Shut your eyes and don't peep while I get it arranged."

"Now—behold!" She drew back waiting.

Paul turned, approached the dress casually, pinched the sleeve, between his thumb and finger. "It's a nice little dress—put it on."

"But—but Paul! Don't you like it, dear?"

"Sure I do. But I can't tell much till you wear it. Does brown suit you? When will the one from Paverel's be ready?"

Polly tried to speak, but could only manage a gasp. She sat down quickly in the nearest chair. * * * And she thought he would rave. Her beautiful, carefully-chosen painstakingly supervised Paverel frock! And he didn't even guess it was the Paverel . . . Well—there was simply no use expecting a man to understand dress. Polly was heartsick.

"What is it, dear—don't look like that. I tell you I do like it. It's real cutie. I bet you'll look a dream in it. You'd make any dress look swell."

"But—Oh, Paul—" Polly could hardly keep the tears out of her voice, "—don't you understand; it is the Paverel. I suppose it looks to you like a cheap little hand-me-down from a department store, and it's one of the lovliest models Paverel had. Why it—it cost a—perfect fortune!"

Paul looked blank. He said nothing but examined the frock again, clumsily.

"What do you call a fortune?" He figured hastily what he paid for his own suits—something between $60 and $80 perhaps—

"A—a hundred and eighty—and the tax," breathed Polly.

"Whew!" whistled Paul and fell silent.

Polly was so hurt she dared say nothing for fear of tears—or an angry outburst. She began putting the frock back into its box.

"Of course it's all right, dear," said Paul. "Vio Rand knows clothes, and if she helped you choose it, it's a swell little dud. I knew Violet would—"

This was too much.

"Miss Rand had nothing to do with it," blazed Polly. "I'd rather wear a potato-sack than have her choose my clothes! It's cruel of you to suggest that she knows more than I do about what's right for me. I hate her—I hate her—I hate her!"

Polly turned suddenly, catching her breath, and darted into the little dressing room. Paul fled after her. But the key turned in the lock.

WANTS SENATOR POMERENE'S JOB

Mrs. Virginia D. Green.

Cleveland, Feb. 2.—(By NEA Service.)—Mrs. Virginia D. Green has just announced her candidacy for a seat in the United States senate.

She probably will seek the Democratic nomination at the next primary.

Mrs. Green says her candidacy is a protest of women against the seating of Senator Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, who was accused of gaining his seat by spending large sums.

Mrs. Green has served as a school board member in Cleveland for 10 years. If she enters the Democratic primary she will be a primary opponent of Senator Altee Pomerene of Ohio, who will seek nomination for re-election.

FROM MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

One of the best of the cheaper cuts of meat is the shin of beef. The meat is tender and much finer grained than some of the so-called cheap cuts. While there is quite a lot of bone the meat is really cheap enough to make up for the waste and the bone can be boiled for soup stock.

Have the bone removed from the shin, leaving a piece of solid meat. A two and a half pound middle cut of the shin will serve four persons.

Pot Roast of Beef.

Two and one-half pounds shin of beef, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup flour.

Have the butcher remove the bone and cut it in several pieces. Roll and tie the meat. Mix flour, salt and pepper and thoroughly dredge meat. Remove some of the marrow from the bone and fry out in the kettle in which the meat is to be cooked. When very hot put in the meat and sear quickly on all sides. This keeps in the juice.

Let the meat brown well, dredging with more flour as fast as the meat absorbs it. When nicely browned add 1½ cups boiling water. Cover closely and let simmer for two hours. There should be a rich brown gravy with a piece of beef cooked this way.

Shin of Beef a la Mode.

Three pounds meat, ¼ pound salt pork, 1 pepper, 2 carrots, 1 small onion, parsley, bay leaf, ½ lemon, 1-3 cup vinegar, 4 cloves, salt and pepper.

Have the meat boned and rolled by the butcher. Put in a crock with the onion minced, cloves, bay leaf and minced parsley. Pour over the vinegar and lemon juice and let stand half a day, turning the meat often.

Cut half of the salt pork in narrow strips and use to lard the meat. Fry the rest of the pork out in the kettle in which the meat is to be cooked. Drain meat and brown quickly on all sides in the kettle. Remove meat from kettle and stir 2 tablespoons flour into fat. Add 2 cups water slowly, stirring constantly, and the vinegar and spices in which the meat was soaked.

Cook, stirring constantly until the mixture boils. Add 1 cup hot water and replace the meat. Season with salt and pepper and cook just below the boiling point of two hours. Add the carrots, scraped and thinly sliced and cook thirty to forty minutes longer.

HOW A WAY WAS FOUND TO THE TOP OF THE WORLD

Mount Everest's Conquest Seems Assured Next Season, Reports From Preliminary Expedition Show—Access From Northeastern Glacier Appears Practical and Base Is Being Established 23,000 Feet Up for Final Dash of 6,000 Feet More to Summit

MAN'S conquest of the earth probably will be complete next year, when Mount Everest, the highest peak of the Himalayas and the greatest mountain in the world, is scaled. The preliminary expedition seemingly has found a feasible ascent. A base for the final dash is being established well about the 20,000 foot level. When the weather permits in 1922 the final effort will be made. Late advices from London say that Brigadier-General C. G. Bruce, noted soldier and explorer, has been invited to command the climbers.

AFTER Mount Everest what? The Alexander of exploration, whoever he may be, in the report of progress made this year on the highest point of earth must be already sighing for new heights to conquer. But where are they to be sought? Perhaps on the moon, perhaps on Mars.

The history of attempts to scale this top of the world is thick with failures in which human lives have been risked devotedly and many of these lives have been lost. But with each successive expedition progress has been made and men have drawn nearer and nearer to their goal. Each expedition gathered useful knowledge for a future trial, and at last the lonely peak seems about to render up its secret. Certainly the scientists of the world appear to be hopeful that the next exploring party, already being formed, will attain its object. This confidence is based on the results of the expedition sent out last spring.

It was a very carefully organized expedition which started then, under auspices of the Royal Geographical Society and the Alpine Club of Great Britain and assisted by the Government of India. May 18 and May 19, the dates when the two parties set out, which comprises the Mount Everest expedition, will be marked dates until their fame shall be dimmed by the date—no longer believed to be uncertain— when another party shall overlook the world from Everest's peak.

For this party of 1921 accomplished what it set out to do. All the approaches to Everest from northeast to west were reconnoitred and a possible route to the summit was discovered on the northeast ridge.

Surveyors under Major H. T. Morshead of the Survey of India mapped under great difficulties an area of more than 13,000 square miles of a country previously unknown. Major E. O. Wheeler, second Government of India surveyor, who accompanied the main party to make a special photographic survey of the Everest group, succeeded in doing so to a scale of one inch to the mile.

Dr. A. M. Heron of the Indian Geological Survey, in charge of the geological work, investigated the geology of the whole district, finding many outcrops of limestone, with telltale fossils revealing the secret of the age of the Himalayas.

A. M. Wollaston, botanist and zoologist, made a most complete collection of all the mammals and birds of the region; also a wonderful flora of seeds of flowers, many of which are new.

Dr. Kellas made a valuable chemical and physical series of researches in questions of oxygen and blood pressures at great heights. Harold Raeburn, member of the Alpine Club, was in charge of the Alpine climbers. Col. Howard Bury had charge of the "publicity" of the party, sending full accounts of its progress from time to time to Darjeeling, whence they were telegraphed all over the world. A general statement made by Col. Bury: [illegible] country with some of the most wonderful valleys in the world about which nothing before was ever known now has been thoroughly explored and systematically mapped. Some of the greatest beauties of nature hitherto unknown and hidden from man have been photographed."

Barometers Designed Especially For Use in High Altitudes

Among other scientific instruments taken along was a mercurial barometer of the George pattern, which only comes into action above 15,000 feet; also duplicate sets of aneroids, working only at 15,000 and 20,000 feet, resptctively; maximum and minimum thermometers, solar radiation thermometers, and boiling point apparatus. These were apart from the instruments of the Survey of India. All the instruments were carefuly tested at the National Physical Laboratory.

Of absorbing interest is the story of the expedition as it appears in a sort of diary form in the manuscripts of Col. Bury. On the day it left Gnatong, the last village in Sikkim, it was raining heavily there was no view on the way up the pass, and the hillsides were veiled in mist. The climb of 14,390 feet to the top of the pass was not very steep, but at the summit there were still many patches of last winter's snow. Here a heap of stones marked the Sikkim-Tibet frontier.

The descent to the Chumbi Valley is very steep, over 5,000 feet from the top of the pass. Here the vegetation was almost European in character; rhododendrons grew under the shade of dark fir trees, and clematis spiraea, iris and red and white roses grew in masses beside the descending path.

And so they came to the rich, fertile Chumbi Valley, where the broad fields were filled with potatoes and ripening barley [illegible] through many prosperous villages Yatung was reached, a really delightful spot, where apples, pears and other small fruits do well, and barley, buckwheat and potatoes are grown in great quantities.

Thence a two days' march led to Phari, through a pretty valley all the way. To within a few miles of this place the expedition marched alongside the rushing torrent Ammochu, through the loveliest woods of birch, fir and juniper, mixed up with rhododendrons of every color and size. These vanished as they climbed into Phari, 14,390 feet, a dirty village, above which towered the peak of Chomolhari Mountain.

Now they entered the real Tibetan country, a country of rolling plains and downs, with views often extending over a couple of hundred miles.

At Khampa Dzong on June 5 Dr. Kellas died of heart disease. His loss was deeply deplored. Here too ensued trouble with the transportation end. The Government mules, as the expedition came to ascending and descending on the Sikkim marches, began to collapse. After every day's march each party had to leave three mules behind, which were unable to proceed even without a load.

The fourth day's march, from Pedong to Rongli, though only twelve miles, was especially trying. The path dropped steeply down nearly 3,000 feet, only to climb up another 3,000 feet in the next few miles, followed by another steep drop of 2,500 feet.

After a day's rest at Rongli it was necessary to hire local mules and ponies, leaving the Government mules behind. It was a terrible breakdown of transport at the very beginning of the expedition and after only five days' marches. Luckily it was possible to get enough mules for transport as far as Khampa Dzong.

The climb from Sedonchen to Gnatong was the steepest yet encountered, with a rise of more than 5,000 feet in eight miles. On May 24 the party arrived at Gnatong, at an altitude of more than 13,000 feet.

Gnatong is described as a dirty, muddy village, lying in a hollow. It is the first halting place on the way out from Jelep La. A constant stream of mule and pony caravans passes to and from Tibet. From here the party hastened on to Tibet. June 8 is the day they left Khampa Dzong. At Lingga they had their first clear but distant view of Mount Everest.

On June 11 they left Tinki Dzong. The day's march led over the Tinki Pass, 17,000 feet high, but quite easy, with fine views to the east. They then descended into the broad valley of the Yaru, here carpeted with gorse and yellow flowers. They had to ford this river, which is at that point about eighty yards wide and three feet deep. After crossing a marshy plain they arrived at the home of Phari Jongpen, who entertained the chiefs at his house, a fine, solid, stone building, with walls covered by gorse and juniper. Their meal was of dumplings, with soup and chili sauce, together with tea, milk and beer. Each guest was expected to eat fifteen dumplings as his share.

Found All Maps of Land Near Mt. Everest Misleading

Col. Bury writes at this juncture:

"All maps of these parts now are most misleading, as they are totally inaccurate."

Leaving Rongong, the party followed the south bank of the Yaru some ten miles, to where the stream is joined by the Arum and turns to flow south, cutting its way through the Himalayas. A severe march across a sandy valley followed, dangerous with quicksands. Unable to do this crossing in one day the party camped alongside the quicksands in the dunes, which were being whirled about by a sharp gale.

"Just before dark," wrote Col. Bury, "a most beautiful and lofty peak appeared in the southwest. The drivers called it Chomouri, the Goddess of Turquoise Peak. We had many discussion as to what mountain it was. In the morning we took its bearing carefully and decided this must be Mount Everest we had come so far to find, and which was now only about fifty miles away and stood up quite by itself.

"It was Everest. It was separated from all other peaks, towering into the clear blue sky to an immense height and far surpassing its neighbors in loftiness and grandeur."

The first halt on the direct route to Lhasa was at Tuna, where there was a comfortable bungalow. The next stage was to Dochen. On the way the party passed a number of goa (Tibetan gazelle), grazing on the plain. They were very wild, never allowing the travellers to approach nearer than 400 yards. Morning in Tibet is described as calm and beautiful, but at midday a strong wind arises and blows with great violence all the afternoon. That this wind is local was shown by the fact that the upper clouds were unaffected.

After passing Dochen the party left the Gyantse road and crossed over the Dug pass, 16,400 feet, to Khe, which lies in the broadest part of the valley, once the bed of Lake Kulatzo. In this valley are ruins of what once must have been an important city. Some of the buildings remaining are of considerable size. Its present name is Khetam, and it flourished in the days before Tashi Lumpo was built.

The next march was to Kheru and from there to Tatsang, about sixteen miles, across two passes of about 16,450 feet and 17,100 feet. The gradients were easy all the way. The winds around Tatsang blew keenly. During the night the thermometer inside the tents fell to 25 degrees F., which meant at least 15 degrees of frost outside.

"In all these parts," writes Col. Bury, "the people know Everest by the name of Chomo-lungma, the goddess mother of the country. This is apparently the Tibetan name for the mountain."

At a height of 18,000 feet camp was established for the combined purposes of training the coolies in snow and ice work and in ascertaining whether there were ways of getting round the terrible precipices, which descend an almost sheer 10,000 feet straight down to Rongbuk glacier.

To the northwest and west extended great ridges, and again to the north. The question was: Would it be possible to get on these ridges, which are of the steepest, and descend in great cliffs to the glacier? Even supposing the ridge summits at 25,000 feet were gained there yet remained some of the most difficult rock climbing at still greater heights before the summit could be attained. Hard rock climbing is practically impossible at great heights, demanding too much of the human frame. In this highly rarefied air the extra exertion demanded was impossible.

Ideal Weather Until July 7, When Rainy Season Set In

Till July 7 the weather was most favorable for reconnaissance. The mornings were clear till about 10 o'clock, and at sunset the peaks stood out wonderfully clear and distinct. The last rays of the setting sun lingered for many minutes on the topmost cliffs of the highest mountain in the world after the lower peaks had all turned cold and gray.

After July 7 the rainy season was upon the expedition, rain and hail alternated with snow at the upper camps. Visibility was consequently poor and the work was halted. Toward the end of July the base camp was moved round to near Kharta, which is a collection of villages in the Arun Valley, near to the place where the Kharta Tsangpo, a very large glacier stream, joins the Arun river.

By the end of August all the various approaches to Mount Everest from the Tibetan plateau had been investigated. Tingri was the first base for exploration to the northwest. After making sure that there were no glaciers descending from the Everest group toward the Kaprak Valley the Alpine climbers tried the next valley to the east. This is the Rongbuk Valley, and proved to be a direct and easy approach with a good path to the Rongbuk and Choeling monasteries.

The Rongbuk stream springs from great glaciers descending straight from Everest, with one broad arm sweeping down from the west from the great group of mountains 26,000 feet high, and another long arm from the east coming down from the col, joining Everest, with high snow mountains to the north.

To the west and northwest Mount Everest sends out two huge spurs descending to this glacier, and no means of attacking the mountain were to be found on that side. Direct approach from the north was equally impossible, as the mountain descended in an almost vertical cliff for 10,000 feet.

Heavy Falls of Snow Hamper Further Exploration

The approach up the eastern branch of the Rongbuk glacier to the col Everest appeared practicable, but very long, but before it was possible to make any genuine attempt to penetrate this valley the weather broke and heavy falls of snow down as low as 16,000 feet made further work impossible.

After waiting for a few days, hoping that the weather would improve, the Alpine climbers came down and joined the base at Choeluk, as it was being moved on its way round to Kharta, which is situated to the east of Everest on the next big glacier stream.

From here it was possible to investigate the eastern and northeastern faces of Everest. The only approach to Everest known to the local inhabitants was that from the neighboring valley of Kamachu, or, as it is called higher up, Shinchu. They knew of no approach directly up the Kharta Valley, and, indeed, they themselves never went up there, as the shepherds who graze yaks on its alps in the summer do not belong to them, but are nomads, living near Shekar Dzong during the winter.

Kamachu is a most beautiful valley, and afforded a magnificent and easy approach to the mountain, passing right under the enormous precipices of Makalu, the northern peak. After a short visit, however, to this valley, and a careful examination of the eastern face and the great southeastern ridge of Everest, the climbers found no possible means of getting up the formidable cliffs which surrounded the Kamgshung glacier, or the ice cliffs overhanging them.

The northern ridge sweeping down to the north col is unapproachable from this valley, but they saw that there must be another, intermediate, valley between the north ridge and the northeast spur, so they crossed the intervening ridge back again into the Kharta Valley, and then followed the Kharta Valley to its source.

Here Major Morshead joined the party, and following up the glacier at the head of the valley they found gentle snow slopes covered with spotless fresh snow nearly knee deep. Thereupon they proceeded with great difficulty over the snow covered glacier until they reached a col nearly 23,000 feet up looking on to the north ridge of Everest about a mile further on across another glacier.

Having seen that it was possible to reach the northern ridge of Everest from this valley they started to lay plans for the future attack from this direction. With soft snow and warm weather it is quite impossible to take laden coolies by this route, so the only thing to do was to prepare everything at the base, collect stores, firewood and rations for coolies, get these carried up as high as possible, and then wait till the monsoon conditions abate and the snow, becoming frozen hard, enables a further advance.

With this end in view an advanced base camp was established about eighteen miles up the Kharta Valley at an approximate height of 17,500 feet, and a second camp was formed on the rocks further up the glacier just under the 20,000 feet mark, to which thirteen loads of stores and fuel were carried.

From this point arrangements were at once made to establish a camp somewhere between the 23,000 feet and 24,000 feet levels on the slopes of Everest itself.

The route, the only one at all practicable, had been found. Everest, after centuries, was in danger of losing its secret!

Yes, a way up had been found. On October 10 the scientific world, and, indeed, the entire intelligent world, rejoiced on receipt of a telegram from the expedition announcing success at the last chance as a way had opened. The telegram was despatched by Col. Bury from Phari Dzong.

SHIRLEY MASON SCORES TRIUMPH IN "LOVETIME."

Failure is apparently not in the lexicon of Shirley Mason, the William Fox star. She scores another emphatic triumph in "Lovetime," the romance of a maid of Savoy, which comes to the Alhambra Friday. The story, written by Hubert La Due, is dainty and wholesome somely staged by Howard M. Mitchsomely staged by Howard M. Mitchell—who has directed much of Miss Mason's best work—and the entire support of the star is excellent, headed by Raymond McKee as leading man.

The romance of "Lovetime" begins when an artist of noble birth, wandering into a village of Savoy under an assumed name, paints the portrait of a little peasant maid whose beauty has attracted him. The scene shifts to Paris, whither she goes to escape the attentions of an aged Don Juan and where she earns a living by her ability as a singer and dancer. The young artist follows her—so does the aged Don Juan—his uncle. The latter enlists the co-operation of the artist's aristocratic mother to prevent a union of the loving pair, and difficulties thereupon are erected. But all comes right in the end, of course: and meanwhile Shirley Mason is busy building up the sympathy and admiration of the audience for the pretty heroine.

"Lovetime" is to be recommended as delightful entertainment.

BIG PHOTOPLAY "SATURDAY NIGHT."

Starting Sunday Cecil B. Demille's big photoplay sensation "Saturday Night" comes to the Auditorium. This feature next week will run in over two hundred theaters throughout the United States.

FIRST APPEARANCE HERE OF JANE COWL

Newark theater patrons are to have their first glimpse of beautiful Jane Cowl at the Auditorium theater, Saturday, Feb. 4th, afternoon and evening.

Miss Cowl has been high on the throne of the public attention this season because of the unequalled achievements she has registered on an epoch making tour of the country, following the year's run of the piece at the Broadhurst theater in New York. Twenty weeks were spent at the Cort theater in Chicago, followed by ten weeks in Philadelphia.

Miss Cowl will unquestionably attract all classes of theater-goers in this city, for with her visit, local playgoers are given an opportunity of witnessing a beautiful actress in a charming play, delightfully staged. "Smilin' Through" affords Miss Cowl a chance to portray a dual role being the heroine of two separate and distinct romances. As Moonyeen Clare she appears in a bridal dress of that musty yesterday when hoop skirts were the fashion, and moves to the man whose bride she was, the power to extinguish love.

BETTY COMPSON IN "FOR THOSE WE LOVE."

An unusual fine cast has been chosen to support Betty Compson in her first starring vehicle, "For Those We Love," a Goldwyn release, coming to the Auditorium theater, for tomorrow.

Lon Chaney, who made his first outstanding success in "The Miracle Man," [illegible] same picture in which Miss Compson herself won national recognition, has the role of a gambler, whose every instinct was covered by the hard veneer of his trade. After an accidental meeting, in which he saves the heroine from drowning, he finds that all his thoughts center upon her; and his acts afterward are never free from the possible judgment she may pass upon them. It is a difficult characterization superbly done by Mr. Chaney.

Richard Rosson the brother of Arthur Rosson, the director of "For Those We Love," has an important part as the knavish brother of the heroine. Frank Campeau, an actor of long experience, plays the part of an unregenerate gambling-house keeper. Other seasoned actors in the company are Camille Astor, Bert Woodruff, Harry Duffield, Walter Morosco, son of the theatrical producer, Oliver Morosco, and George Cooper.

MARCUS MUSICAL REVIEW COMING.

The Marcus Musical Review at the Hartman the later part of this week, comes to the Auditorium theater, on Wednesday, Feb 15th. This is one of the big musical attractions now on the road.

"Mecca," "Dear Me," with Grace LaRue and Hale Hamilton are also coming soon.

REALISM OVERDONE IN FILMS.

"Knocked out cold!"

Herbert Heyes lay on the pitching deck of the schooner, with Frank Mayo, Claire Windsor, Robert Anderson, Stanhope Wheatcroft and the other players in "Dr. Jim" doing their best to bring him to. William Worthington, director of the production, ordered him carried into the cabin, where a wet red bruise on his head was washed and cold water used as a restorative.

Mr. Hayes opened his eyes in a few minutes with a mild outburst on the subject of a screen villian's hard life. Being the "brute" of the picture he felt called on to make his remarks audible and expressive.

Outside a stiff wind whipped the surface of the Pacific into a seething battlefield of billows.

Realism was the thing Mr. Worthington wanted when he was taking the storm scenes of "Dr. Jim," the Universal special attraction coming to the Alhambra theater on Sunday. He sought it in every detail of the virle story

TOM MIX COMING IN "BIG TOWN ROUND-UP."

"The Big Town Round-Up," in which Tom Mix, the Fox star, is to open a run of two days at the Alhambra theater, on Monday, should be entertainment of the very best Mix brand, if one may judge by an outline of the story, written by William McLeod Raine.

Mix appears as a young ranch owner, with whom romance begins when he meets, through auto trouble, the pretty daughter of a wealthy father who is on tour seeking investments in the far West.

RISKS LIFE TO FILM TRESTLE SCENE.

Leatrice Joy and Jack Mower narrowly escaped death several times in the filming of an automobile accident episode in "Saturday Night," Cecil B DeMille's latest Paramount picture, which will be the attraction at the Auditorium theater next Sunday. But the narrowest escape came when Miss Joy stumbled accidently and fell on the railroad trestle a hundred feet above the ground.

In this episode Miss Joy and Mr. Mower attempt to cross a railroad trestle in an automobile only to be trapped mid-way across by an approaching electric train. In their frantic efforts to escape they rush for the distant end of the trestle. Realizing that this is impossible, Mower was to force Miss Joy to Clamber over the edge of the trestle with him where the pair would hang suspended while the train rushed above them, scrapping the automobile.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

WHY SUFFER FROM BRONCHIAL ASTHMA?

Simple Home Treatment Makes Breathing Easy.

Just because you start the day tired, lifeless, worn-out from loss of rest and the difficult breathing of miserable Asthma—do not think you have to stay this way long.

Be strong and well, breathe clearly and easily again by using this simple treatment known as Oxidaze, the prescription of a Worcester, Mass., physician.

For any form of Asthma where the bronchial tubes are irritated, the breathing short and difficult, its healing, relieving action is really wonderful. Sufferers who can't breathe at night and who gasp for a good, clear breath will appreciate the relief and comfort Oxidaze gives.

Oxidaze is a tablet made from essential oils which, when the patient dissolves in the mouth, almost immediately sothes the irritation, clears out the choked up air passages and enables the sufferer to breathe easily and get a real comfortable night's sleep.

It is sold by W. A. Erman, Evans Drug Co., and leading druggists who agree to refund the full purchase price of the first package to any sufferer who does not obtain satisfactory relief. Asthmatic sufferers should give Oxidaze a trial. It is harmless and inexpensive.

DR. LEWIS NOW KNOWS NUMBER OF AUTO ENGINE

Dr. J. T. Lewis reported to the police yesterday afternoon that his Ford sedan had been stolen. He declared that he did not know the license or engine number and the police told him to call Reinbold's and get the necessary numbers.

As motor car information is listed at Reinbold's by the license numbers and not by the owner's name, a great deal of trouble was experienced in obtaining the information. It was finally obtained, however, and turned over to Dr. Lewis. Shortly after that Mrs. Lewis called the doctor and told him that she had the car which she had used to take her to the card party at the Elks' club rooms, Wednesday afternoon.

"Doc" then called the police and told them that it was all off and that the car was safe.

There are 20 percent more horses and nearly twice as many mules in the United States as there were 25 years ago.

CROWD LIKED K-P MINSTREL

Last Night's Audience is Generous With Applause for Home Talent Production— Program Repeated Tonight.

If the success of the Knights of Pythias minstrels is attested by laughter and applause the show last night was the acme of success. The minstrels are being presented for two nights at the Auditorium theater and a capacity house saw the first performance last night.

The curtain goes up, on the assembled company presenting the tableaux "The Spirit of the Knights of Pythias" with Gene Wollinsky, Chester Bailey, Arthur Vanatta, Garner Gilbert, Jesse Swisher and Desco Phillips, in medeival costume, and Sim Loughman as "Old Black Joe."

The large chorus then takes up a medley of airs, which is made attractive by rehearsal and dancing by the following dancers: Arthur Wheeler, Henry Factor, Ben McNarty, Forest Muhlemar, George Reybeck, Charles Schrigley, Bill Mackerrey and George Burr.

Arthur Wheeler did some good solo dancing [illegible] with either, "When My Sugar Walks Down the Street [illegible] Walking [illegible]"

There were three ballad numbers "There's [illegible] Pal After All" by Ed Lahley, "Leave One With a Smile" by Herve Reynolds and "Don't You Remember the Time" by Clarence Shrigley. All were supported in chorus work by the following: Will Dover, Herve Reynolds, Dan Lee, Harold Robinson, Clarence Shrigley, Ed Lahley, John Lahley, Elmer Higgs, Harry Francis, Noland Brown, Will Robinson and Clarence Crossley.

The two first ends were Roy English and George Rohan. English had for his song number "Stop! Look and Listen" and Rohan's rendition was "Wabash Blues."

Two of the directors, Edward Ewald and Paul Brown, acted as premier ends, bringing to the front their ability as professionals.

Ewald is a clever dancer and he interpolated many steps in his song number "Dapper Dan." Brown sang "Clap, clap Your Hands," which included some local talent.

Before the curtain on the first part Ewing Fauce was introduced singing "A son of the Desert Am I," and for an encore gave "Dear Old Girl."

There was numerous jokes, some of which might not withstand the test of censorship. Ralph Davis acted as interlocutor.

The olio opened with Morgan Davis, in a dramatic reading, "The Murderer." It was well given with an appropriate setting.

Ralph Davis and Paul Brown, put on a talking and singing act, which they called "A Study in Black and White." They were forced to take several encores, and were followed by Jake Stauffer's Jazz orchestra, with Earl Wyeth drummer, Greely, saxaphone, Jake Stauffer, clarinet, Eddie Ewald trombone and Leo Reichert at the piano. The several selections were well received and dancing act was introduced with Phoebe Moore, Virginia Reel, Reta Jane Smith, Bobby Smith and Frances Reynolds, in an entertaining, attractively costumed act.

Roy English and Fred Porter gave an eccentric dance number, and another dancing feature which proved attractive was the sailor's hornpipe by Charles Dolra, Fred Porter, Jimmie James and Clarence Winters. "A Kitten on the Keys," with Earl Wyeth xiyophone, and Reichert at the piano went big. The act concluded with song and dance number by Eddie Ewald.

"Mixed Pickles" a quartet composed of John Lahley, Ed Lahley, Clarence Crossley and Will Robinson, sang several popular quartet numbers. A black face farce, using the entire company and the Knights of Pythias band concluded the performance. Those taking part and assisting with the chorol work in the first part were James Cutter, Cecil Hay, Elton Stillwagon, Howard Weckley, Clarence Davis, George Boggs, Walter Magers, D'Wayne Schefler, Robert Price, Harry Rinehart, Cyril Hartman, Glen Robinson, Max Reuten, Claude King.

The show is being directed and presented by Ralph Davis, Paul Brown and Ed Ewald with Robert Northey as director of the orchestra.

FORD'S OFFER

in the manufacture of materials necessary in time of war for the production of explosives. He further agrees that the fertilizer produced at nitrate plant No. 2 shall not be sold at a profit in excess of 8 per cent of the actual annual cost of production thereof, and to turn over to the United States nitrate plant No. 2 whenever it shall be required for the national defense.

"He likewise asks for a preference in opportunity to purchase or lease the property at the end of the lease period. He also states that his proposal must be accepted as a whole and not in part."

In a brief summary of the offer which the secretary incorporates in his letter of transmission he mentions the considerations running to the government as follows:

"(A) Four per cent on part of the capital necessary to complete the construction of the power projects.

"(B) The payment of a sum semiannually into a sinking fund calculated to produce about $49,00,000 at the end of the lease period. This payment amounts to $46,746 annually

"(C) Mr Ford proposes to pay $25,000 a year for the upkeep of dam No 2 and $20,000 for the upkeep of dam No. 3 and its lock.

"(D) The proposals require Mr. Ford's company to operate nitrate plant No. 2 to its approximate present capacity, which is estimated to be a production of 110,000 tons of ammonium nitrate per annum.

"(E) Mr. Ford's company is to maintain nitrate plant No. 2, in its present state of readiness for immediate operation for the production of explosives and is to turn it over to the government, together with such of its personnel as may be required for the national defense.

"(F) The government will be saved the expense of maintaining and operating the present imperfect facilities for navigation at Muscle Shoals amounting to from $35,000 to $55,000 per annum."

Attention is also directed to the cost of the nitrate plants for which Mr. Ford offers $5,000,000.

"Mr. Ford is offering but $5,000,000 for the title to the two nitrate plants, the Waco quarry, the Gorgas-Warrior steam plant, transmission lines and appurtenances," says Secretary Weeks, adding that so "you may better understand the value of the property, I am attaching to this letter a brief statement prepared by the chief of ordnance, showing the cost and estimated salvage value of these properties. From the table contained in this statement it will be seen that these properties cost the United States approximately $85,000,000 and that as scrap they are estimated to be worth $8,812,000."

Another statement appended to the secretary's letter, prepared by Major General Beach, chief of army engineers, points out four indirect benefits, the government will receive in the event the Ford offer is accepted.

The secretary informs congress that the air nitrates corporation which constructed nitrate plant number 2 under contracts purporting to give options of purchase to the corporation, has notified him that it claims the right to exercise the option to purchase the plant on as favorbale terms as those offered by Mr. Ford in the event Mr. Ford's offer is accepted.

The statement further shows that the chief of ordnance believes the war department can dispose of the property for $16,272,000.

"Mr Ford is bound by his proposal to operate plant number 2," the letter continues, "but there is no legal obstacle to prevent his disposing of the other properties to which he gets title."

The letter says the present revenue from the rental of power plant number 2 is a minimum of $120,000 a year, with a possibility that, in the event of operation, it may run to $260,000. The cost of maintenance for the fiscal year 1921 is given at $200,000.

A statement by Major General Williams, chief of ordnance, submarizing the Ford offer from the standpoint of his department, says it has the very "important advantage of materially assisting in the development of nitrogen preparedness and has the disadvantage of making a net return to the government of less than $5,000,000 for properties which have an estimated salvage value of some $16,000,000."

RED CROSS SPEAKER ADDRESSES LIONS

Dr. S. E. Brewster, delivered an address of unusual interest at the monthly dinner and evening meeting of the Lions club held last night at 6 o'clock in the Masonic Temple.

Dr. Brewster is representing the American Red Cross and his address Wednesday evening was startling in its relations. He combines his actual experience with his scientific knowledge of health conditions in this and other counties, therefore his talk had the conviction of personal contact and study. His talk "Our Children" which he gave to the club last evening was startling inasmuch as some of the cases cited were so close to our own home. Dr. Brewster is a forceful speaker and he was enthusiastically received.

A mixed quartet composed of the Lion club members and their wives gave several delightful selections. The personnel of the quartet included Mr. and Mrs. Russell [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Burch. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. [illegible]. Two entertaining [illegible] were given by Mrs. Young and Mr. William Shrontz.

F. M'DONALD IS MUNY JUDGE TODAY

Due to the continued illness of Judge Frank A. Bolton of the municipal court and his enforced absence from his duties, he arranged this morning with Attorney P. F. McDonald to assume the duties of municipal judge. Attorney McDonald assumed his duties this morning when he heard four cases.

John Ridenour and Walter Ro[illegible] charged with drunkenness, were fined $5 and costs and sent to the county jail to serve out their sentences as they failed to pay their fines.

Judgements were rendered for [illegible] Norpell and H. C. Ashcraft against William Wince for $50 in each case.

Richardson was refused a divorce from his wife by Judge Alexander and was ordered to pay her $40 a month alimony as long as they lived separately. Attorney Russell for Richardson seeks a rehearing of the case.

Sues for Account.

The P. Smith Sons Lumber company filed suit against Charles C. Richardson in common pleas court this morning. The petition claims that judgment of $173.67 was secured against Richardson and that execution for this amount against his property was held up because of the claims of Mrs. Richardson and the Home Building Association company. The court is asked to have these parties set up their claims and to adjust the liens against the property and for all proper relief. Fitzgibbon, Montgomery and Black are the attorneys.

Defendant Wins Suit.

In the case of John Haycock vs. William Howard et al., the jury returned a verdict for the defendant Wednesday afternoon. Suit was brought for $600 damages as the result of a collision between machines at Fourth and Main streets last year. Following the verdict, Attorney W. F. Lavin for Haycock filed a motion for a new trial.

LAND FERTILITY IS IMPORTANT

Speaker at Farmers Week Puts it First Among Farm Problems.

Permanent Rural Progress Rests on This Fact, Mann Asserts.

Columbus, Feb. 2.—The first condition to rural progress lies in the fertility of the land, A. R. Mann, dean of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell university, declared in an address here today at the annual Farmers' Week at Ohio State University. "The soil is the starting point in agriculture and country life, he said. "Those practices which sustain and increase soil productivity make for permanent rural progress."

"It is the present American policy to appropriate for the promotion of agriculture, sums of money too vast to be easily comprehended," Mr. Mann continued. "Does any one know with any sufficient accuracy whether the returns are in any fair degree commensurate with the expenditures? Or whether the expenditures are being applied at the points of greatest need and chief value?

"The question of measuring the rate and direction of agricultural progress is not mere academic occupation. It is the most important of practical problems. Without such a measure, we shall always move in semi-darkness, dealing in temporary remedies and correctives.

"Studies made in a New York County first by economic and later by social investigators, show that the eight townships of that county rank as to the development of their churches almost identically in the same order as they do in respect to the labor income received, on the average, by the farmers in these townships. Churches and other rural community institutions very accurately reflect the agriculture prosperity of the regions in which they are located.

"The most significant index of fundamental progress in American Agriculture is probably to be found in the fact that, measured by the production of grain, the efficiency of farm labor in the United States increased 45 per ment in the 40 years from 1870 to 1910. During that time, the per-farmer production of grains increased from 13,625 to 19,788 pounds.

"From figures carefully gathered in New York state, it appears that 59 per cent more of farm products was produced per worker by New York farmers in 1917, than in 1865.

"The fact that American cities have grown so enormously is testimony to an increased efficiency of farm labor. Many workers have been freed for work in city industries."

Every consideration is due the farmer in his present plight, Mr. Mann said, but, he asserted, "he has suffered disproportionately."

"When one takes a long look, there is no reason for encouragement," the speaker continued. "In a recent study on farm prices, Dr. George Warren finds that despite present conditions, American farm products have had a higher purchasing power since 1900, than before that time. While the increase is not great, it shows that prior to the outbreak of the world war, the farmer was making some financial progress.

"But if we are to know where we are getting in agriculture, we need also to devise yard-sticks to show the character and rate of progress which have to do with making a life as well as making a living in the open country. More economical production and more profitable prices for farm products are essential, but economic prosperity will not of itself make the life of the rural community fully satisfying.

"Agricultural progress is to be found in the process of achieving, on the part of people living in the country, in ever greater amount and juster proportion, the highest planes of wealth, sociability, knowledge, beauty and righteousness, which we as an American people have come to associate with personal well being and the objects of our loftiest desires and highest efforts. We can accept no lesser definition of progress in country life than this."

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL DIES FROM INJURIES

Washington, Feb. 2.—Edward H. Shaughnessy of Chicago, second Assistant Postmaster General, died here early today at Walter Reed hospital from injuries received in the Knickerbocker theater disaster Saturday night.

Attending physicians at the army hospital to which Mr. Shaughnessy was taken when removed from the wreckage of the motion picture theater several hours after the collapse of its roof which caused nearly a hundred fatalities, said his death followed a sudden heart collapse shortly after midnight. This was preceded, they said, by development of internal complications late yesterday.

Mr. Shaughnessy's wife and his ten-year-old daughter Ruth, both of whom are now recovering from injuries received in the theater disaster, had not been informed of his death at an early hour today. They are being treated at another hospital, the daughter having had both arms broken, while Mrs. Shaughnessy is suffering from a fractured rib and shock.

President Harding had shown constant concern over Mr. Shaughnessy's condition and during the first days after the accident had received encouraging reports of it through Brigadier General Sawyer, the president's personal physician whom he had sent to the hospital to make direct inquiry.

The death of the second assistant postmaster general brings the fatality list of the disaster as now recorded by the police up to 98.

Wall Street.

New York, Feb 2—Pools resumed their bullish activities at the outset of today's trading after making advances of one to four points in Gulf States Steel, Butte and Superior, Atlantic Gulf, Electric Storage Battery, General Electric, Davison Chemical, Endicott-Johnson and National Enamelling company. Local tractions, foreign oils and low grade rails also strengthened on short covering. The feature of the foreign exchange market was another sharp advance in Sterling.

Traders paid little head to the lighter money tendencies as indicated by call money's opening rate of 5 1-2 percent, the highest initial rate of the week. Baldwin, Lima and American Locomotives, Studebaker, Bosch Magneto, Westinghouse and General Asphalt were foremost among the strong stocks of the first hour. Later the buying embraced other popular oils, also leathers, tobaccos, chemicals, and independent steels, including Bethlehem and Iron Products. Standard Oil of New Jersey became the central feature before noon, rising eight points on a few transactions. The one division to lag was the rails, leaders showing no material change from yesterday's final prices.

Chcago Grain Review.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Wheat advanced today to the highest price since October 4. A new upturn in values at Liverpool was the dominating influence. Besides, crop reports regarding domestic winter wheat in the southwest continued of a character which tended to stimulate buying. Initial quotations which varied from 1-4c to 2 3-8c higher with May $120 to $1.21 3-4 and July $1.06 to $1.06 1-4 were well maintained during the early trading.

Corn and oats ascended with wheat. After opening 1-4 to 1-4 higher, May 54 3-8 to 54 1-2, the corn market scored a slight further upturn.

Oats started unchanged to 1-4 to 3-8c advance. May 39 1-8 to 39 1-4 and then rose a little more.

Higher quotations on hogs helped to lift the price of provisions.

BRIDGE BETWEEN DETROIT AND CANADA

Detroit, Mich. — First actual steps toward bridging the Detroit river between this city and Canada have been taken. Engineers have started borings at several points between Twelfth street and River Rouge on the American side and between Windsor and Ojibway on the Canadian side, to determine the location of the structure.

The borings will find bed rock on which to place tower piers, on which cables wil be anchored 100 feet below the surface of Detroit river. Results of the borings will be known within the next month.

The span will be 1, 302 feet, the longest single span bridge in the world. The present record for length is held by the cantilever bridge at Quebec, which is 1800 feet long, but two feet shorter than the one to be built here.

Surveys to fix harbor lines will be started within a few days. Accurate measurement of the distance across the river also will be made to match street lines and permit engineers to fit the bridge steel. Actual construction of the bridge will start with the coming of favorable weather in the spring, it is announced.

The bridge will carry vehicular and street car traffic and also afford walks for pedestrians.

Mrs. Wright will arrive on Friday and will join Mr. Wright at the family residence in South Pearl street, for a permanent stay.

Prof. C. H. Dickerman, who attended the Kreisler concert in Columbus Monday evening, remained for a visit on Tuesday to the Columbus loan exhibit of American painters. He spoke of several excellent canvasses, "The Willows," by Daniel Garber; two by Philip S[illegible]dale, and many others by American artists who have not as yet achieved distinction, although showing splendid work.

ALL FARM LABOR HASINCREASED 45 PER CENT

Is Index of Progress of American Agriculture In Past 45 Years.

Columbus, Feb. 2.—The most significant index of fundamental progress in American Agriculture is probably found in the fact that, [illegible] by the production of grain, the efficiency of farm labor in the United States increased 45 per cent in the 40 years from 1870 to 1910, Prof. A. R. Mann dean of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University told those attending Farmers' Week at the Ohio State University here today.

"During that time the per-farmer production of grains increased from 11,825 to 15,755 pounds," continued Dean Mann.

"From figures carefully gathered in New York State, it appears that 59 per cent more of farm products was produced per worker by New York farmers in 1917 than in [illegible].

"The fact that American cities have grown so enormously is testimony to an increased efficiency of farm labor. Many workers have been freed for work in city industries.

"In 1820, 87 per cent of all Americans gainfully employed were in agriculture. In 1910 only 35 per cent of our population, so engaged, raised enough for the whole group and a considerable surplus for export. This is striking evidence of a wonderful increase in the efficiency of American farmers.

"Every consideration is due the farmer in his present plight. He has suffered disproportionately. When, however, one takes a long look, there are reasons for encouragement. In a recent study on farm prices, Dr. George Warren finds that, despite present conditions, American farm products have had a higher purchasing power since 1900 than before that time. While the increase is not great it shows that prior to the outbreak of the World War, the farmer was making some financial progress.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES HAVE TO GO

Clogged up Kidney Deposits are Dissolved and the Toxins (Poisons) Completely Driven Out. Druggists Told to Guarantee it in Every Instance.

"Your very life," says Dr. Carey, "depends upon the perfect functioning and health of your kidneys so whatever you do don't neglect them."

Dr. Carey's famous prescription No. 777 known as Marshroot is not recommended for everything, but we cannot too strongly urge its use if you suffer from annoying bladder troubles, frequent passing of water night and day, with smarting or irritation, brick dust sediment or highly colored urine, bloating irritability with loss of flesh, backache, rheumatism or any other tendency to Bright's Disease, Diabetis or Gravel, for kidney disease in its worst form may be stealing upon you.

Don't wait until tomorrow to begin the use of this wonderful prescription now obtainable in both liquid and tablet form if you have any of the above symptoms. Kidney and Bladder troubles don't wear away. They will grow upon you slowly, stealthily and with unfailing certainty.

Never mind the failures of the past if you even suspect that you are subject to Kidney Disease don't lose a single day for Evans' Cut Rate Drug Store and every good druggist has been authorized to return the purchase money on the first two bottles to all who state they have received no benefit.

HEARTBURN AND CONSTIPATION

They Quickly Make One Nervous and Sleepless.

Heartburn is simply an indication of the manufacture of poisonous acid and gas in the stomach. The throat becomes the chimney of the stomach through which some of the poisonous gas escapes giving one a foul breath and causing great pain at times. Usually where one has this symptom of stomach trouble it is found that the sufferer is greatly constipated which aids to the physical discomfort and the danger of a general physical breakdown. It is astonishing the number of women who suffer from indigestion and constipation and especially when there is in every drug store a family remedy that quickly regulates and restores them to health if they will just get it and use it.

From Muskegon, Mich., Mrs. Crignon tells us that she was a great sufferer— that after eating, gas would form in her stomach, giving her heartburn and stomach pains until she could not sleep. Sometimes the gas distended her so that she had terrible pains in the shoulder blades and around the heart. Then from less than one full bottle she found such quick and certain relief that she slept soundly, ate anything she wished without discomfort and had no return of the trouble when she wrote us. You can get Nerv-Worth at any drug store. It is always on sale at the T. J. Evans and Erman drug store in this city—one dollar a bottle and all druggists are authorized to give the money back if the first bottle fails to give satisfaction.

Days of BIG Savings!

All through the store, these are wonderful value-giving days, days that are a source of delight to the thrifty and economic. For Friday and Saturday, we offer many interesting values in the best of much wanted merchandise.

THROW NASTY MEDICINES OUT!

Relieve Children's Colds and Coughs With Nash's Salve. Quick Results. No Bad After Effects.

Put yourself [in] baby's place, mother; would you like to take nasty medicines compounded for adults? Do you think the youngster can take strong cathartics or a prescription containing an opiate?

Give a light purgative and then use the Nash Treatment for children's colds. There will be no resistance on the part of the child because he knows there'll be no bad aftereffects.

Simply apply Nash's Croup-Pneumonia Salve in each nostril with finger. The vapor will open the head, soothe and heal the inflamed membranous linings of the nasal passages.

If cold is a deep one rub salve on throat and chest, afterward covering with warm white flannel. Nash's has unusual penetrating power besides giving off the healing vapor which baby will breathe. Colds disappear quickly under this treatment.

A 30-cent bottle will last a long time. Get it at Erman's Arcade Drug Store and your favorite drug store.

KEELEYS WIN TWO AFTER BAD START

	W.	L.	Pct
Bills	3	2	600
Bonnies	3	2	600
Swishers	2	3	400
Keeleys	2	3	400

Friday: Bills vs. Swishers; Keeleys vs. Bonnies.

The Swishers and the Keeleys had a rough and tumble match last night at the Y. M. C. A. in the volley ball league.

Swishers squad of four men, with some clever playing of the ball, grabbed the first game. The Keeleys came back in the next game with plenty of pep and really showed their opponents how to play. There was no chance for the Swishers now, for the Keeleys made a heavy raid on them, winning best two out of three.

Final scores: 12 to 15; 15 to 10; 15 to 3.

The next set of games were staged by the Bonnies and Bills. This was a sad affair as the Bills lacked that "show us stuff." The Bonnies had a great time with the ball, running away with two straights. Final scores: 15 to 1; 15 to 6.

GOLF ASPIRANTS MUST BE OF TITLE CALIBER

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Golfers who desire to compete in the national amateur championship next summer at Brooklyn will have to convince the eligibility committee of the United States Golf association that they are of championship caliber, for James D. Standish, jr., of Detroit, is making up a card index of all possible players from which all but first raters will be eliminated before the tournament.

Standish, who is chairman of eligibility committee, has arranged to obtain all possible information as to the scoring abilities of all the leading players in the country.

HIGH-Y CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED HERE

The first meeting of the Newark Hi-Y club will be held at the Y. M. C. A. February 15 instead of Wednesday, February 8. This is due to the fact that Mr. Cartlich, the state boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A. will be unable to come until the 15th.

The club promises to be an active one as many of the high school boys have signified desire to get into it. It is an organization of Christian boys who wish to see clean living, slean speech, clean athletics and clean scholarship, made a reality in high school life. The purpose of the Hi-Y is to create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character. It is open to any of the sophmore, junior or senior class, regardless of membership in the Y. M. C. A. who wishes to get behind such a program.

Officers will be elected and all boys who join at this meeting will be charter members.

GIRLS' SCHEDULES ARE READY AT Y. M. C. A.

The girls basket ball league schedules are out and may be had at the Y. M. C. A. Some were distributed at the Industrial and also at the Sunday School league games Tuesday night.

Owing to the necessary length of a double schedule with 8 teams in the league, there will be but one round played. If two rounds were played, the schedule would run until May. The present schedule ends March 11, less than one week earlier than the men's leagues.

There is a possibility of playing several girls exhibition games as preliminary to the clash between the post season game of Industrial and Sunday school champs. However, nothing has been settled on.

The girls eligible lists must be in before the games are played Saturday. Only a few of the teams have complied with this rule.
